

Fear Ten Men Lost Lives in Elevator Fire

Wind Spreads Flames to Adjoining Chicago Structures

HEAVY DAMAGE

Intense Heat Keeps Rescuers From Approaching Buildings

Chicago—(P)—Fire and an explosion leveled a mammoth south side grain elevator today, giving rise to firemen's fears that ten men were killed, then buffeting winds spread the flames to four neighboring elevators and enveloped a quarter square mile in searing heat.

Reports that the casualties might reach a score were unconfirmable because rescuers could not approach within a hundred feet of the furnace.

Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan said it was the largest fire in Chicago since the $8,000,000 conflagration at the stockyards May 18, 1934. Five city firemen and four other men, two seriously hurt, were taken to hospitals.

W. H. Gassler, superintendent in charge of operations for the Rosenbaum Brothers Grain company, said the following men were believed to have been trapped in "A" elevator, where the fire originated: Ernest Barg, Albert Horner, Linn Kester, Henry Kriel, Louis Oldberg, Charles Reganish and Joseph Vedish, all employees, and Ernest Lindgren, a board of trade weighmaster.

5 Taken to Hospitals
Four city firemen, not immediately identified, were taken to St. George's hospital, and Fireman William Hack, and four other men were taken to South Chicago hospital.

Flames spread to "B" and "C" elevators of the Rosenbaum concern, then jumped a ship to two elevators of the Norris Grain company. The fireboat, Joseph Medill, poured water on them in an effort to keep the flames under control.

The nine elevators situated in the Calumet district have a total capacity of 15,000,000 bushels. Grain traders estimated that of the 19,000,000 bushels of grain stored in the Chicago area at present one-half was housed in the Calumet tanks.

Freight cars on neighboring sidings caught fire, piers, a sand barge and dredging gear in the adjoining Calumet river smoldered; parked automobiles ignited; but a shift in the wind saved residences a block away.

The blast, its origin early unknown but believed by firemen to have been caused by a dust explosion or internal combustion, buckled the "A" warehouse of the Rosenbaum Brothers Grain company.

A company spokesman said 800,000 bushels of grain, principally wheat and valued at $200,000, were stored there. The elevator was valued at $200,000 and unofficial estimates placed the eventual loss at $2,000,000.

Others Missing?
Some 30 or 40 workmen were to have reported for work at "A" elevator this morning and several were believed trapped. The grain burned hotly, and flames spread to adjoining "B" and "C" elevators of the same firm.

"A" elevator, with a capacity of 12,500,000 bushels, was constructed of metal clad wood, embraced a square block and towered 150 feet. It was situated at 102nd street and the Calumet river.

Near the cluster of elevators, a series of concrete storage tanks was threatened by the heat.

The group constituted one of the largest storages of grain in the Chicago area.

Many miles away in the loop grain traders went up in the board of trade skyscraper to watch the smoke and speculated on the amount of grain destroyed.

Flight Across River
Unable to approach the fire from the same side of the river, bank firemen lined five powerful engines.

Treasury Head Drafts Plan to Help Business

Wants Congress to Remove Deterrents From Tax Laws

SILENT ON DETAILS

Denies Roosevelt Has Forbidden Him to Present Program

Washington—(P)—Secretary Morgenthau asserted today the treasury intends to ask congress to remove business deterrents from the tax laws.

A reporter asked whether President Roosevelt had virtually forbidden him to present a tax revision program to congress. Morgenthau replied:

"That's ridiculous. We're living under a democracy, thank God."

Although declining to discuss any details of his tax views, Morgenthau said specifically he stood by a press conference statement of a few months ago that he hoped congress would clear the tax laws of business deterrents and thus encourage business to take normal investment risks.

He also asserted he stood by his March 3 letters to Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.) of the senate finance committee and Chairman Doughton (D-N.C.) of the house ways and means committee promising to present certain unspecified tax studies whenever the committees wanted them. Morgenthau expects the house committee to summon him in about a week.

Morgenthau took time out from fiscal problems on his forty-eighth birthday anniversary today to order red roses for a new treasury garden.

FACES NEW CHARGE

Beloit—(P)—E. R. Branigan (above) Beloit fuel dealer and political figure who is serving a term in the Rock county jail for criminal libel, was charged in municipal court today with aiding an attempted jailbreak. John Recoy, 35, of Belvidere, Ill., who is serving a life term at the jail in Jansville, pleaded guilty to a charge of mutilating property in connection with an attempt to break jail, and William Decker, about 45, Beloit barber, pleaded guilty to aiding the attempt. Branigan entered no plea, and all the cases were adjourned until next Tuesday morning. Recoy, taking the stand after entering his plea, testified that Branigan "kicked" him on in planning a break in order to give Sir Owen Rex a "black eye" politically.

Plea to Scrap Labor Board to Meet Attacks

A. F. of L. Proposes to Substitute New Five-Man Agency

6 AMENDMENTS

Green Does Not Close Door to Compromise In His Program

Washington—(P)—An A. F. of L. proposal to scrap the national labor board and substitute a new five-man agency shaped up today as one of the biggest obstacles to any agreement on revising the Wagner labor act.

The proposal was described by President William Green of the federation as one of six fundamental amendments about which A. F. of L. leaders had given no thought of compromise in their conferences with labor board officials.

At the same time, Green conceded the three present board members might well walk off accepting a plan that, in effect, would remove them from office.

Green did not close the door to compromise, however, saying any concrete suggestions worked out in the conferences would be submitted to the A. F. of L. executive council, which is in session here.

Continue Conferences
The conferences of J. Warren Madden, board chairman, and his aids with John P. Frey and Joseph A. Padwa of the federation will continue to the weekend.

Even if the two groups agree on amendments, congressional committees trying to work out legislation still would be confronted with conflicting recommendations from organized labor. The CIO already has expressed disapproval of the negotiations and of any changes in the law.

Green said fundamental points in the proposed A. F. of L. amendments, besides the five-man board, were restricting board powers to fix the appropriate bargaining unit and to invalidate contracts, permitting union appeals to the courts in representation cases, fixing the time for hearings on complaints, and giving employers the right to petition for employee elections.

Meanwhile, the senate committee recessed its hearings until Monday in an apparent desire to let the negotiators find out whether they could get together.

Lewis Tells Union Leaders in Outlying Soft Coal Mine Area To Sign Contracts, Start Work

Would Involve Britain, Prime Minister Asserts

PARIS WARNING

New York—(P)—Dr. John R. Steelman, chief of the United States conciliation service, said late today that insofar as the public was concerned the deadline in the soft coal industry "is over."

Dr. Steelman said "evidence has been presented to indicate that a large percentage of the operators already have a 'union shop' in practice." This point was one of the chief stumbling blocks to a contract agreement.

The "closed shop" means all employees must be union members. The "union shop" permits non-union employees to remain so if they desire at the time a union shop becomes effective, but requires new employees to join the union, usually after a specified length of employment.

Knoxville, Tenn.—(P)—Southern Appalachian coal operators voted unanimously here today to decline a closed shop contract with the United Mine Workers of America.

Washington—(P)—A White House secretary said today President Roosevelt was considering further steps in the soft coal shutdown controversy but would take no action as long as the operators and miners' representatives continued negotiations.

The secretary, Stephen Early, said "some steps" were being considered for resumption of mining, but there was no elaboration.

Early noted that the deadline set by the president for an agreement for reopening the mines had gone by, but said the chief executive "in hope and tolerance" was still waiting for the final results of the negotiations.

New York—(P)—John L. Lewis today dispatched telegrams of instructions to union leaders in outlying districts in the soft coal mining region to sign new contracts with operators, and when that is accomplished, to "arrange for forthwith operation of the mines."

About 126,000 miners employed in the so-called outlying districts stopped work May 4 and 5 to back up the 320,000 idle miners of the Appalachian area whose representatives are deadlocked with the operators' committee in contract negotiations at Hotel Biltmore.

Lewis' telegram emphasized that two sentences must be added to the wording of the old contracts when the new agreements are drawn. These sentences make the U. M. W.

Charge Plot to Bar Congressman From Ceremony Because of Vote Against Increased Relief Funds

Washington—(P)—The house committee investigating the WPA heard testimony today that members of the Workers' Alliance plotted unsuccessfully to prevent forcibly a congressman from attending the Reading, Pa., post office cornerstone-laying ceremonies because he voted against increased relief funds.

Chris Dooze, committee investigator, read an affidavit from a member of the Alliance which said that at a meeting of the organization's Reading branch last Tuesday night a man named Ben Rubin sought adoption of a resolution providing that if Representative Moser (D-Pa.) attended the cornerstone-laying next Saturday, they would remove him bodily from the platform.

Dooze said the resolution did not pass and that Communist members of the Alliance withdrew from the meeting in protest.

Moser sat as one end of the committee table as Dooze testified and told newsmen he "certainly would" attend the post office exercises Saturday.

Another witness, Olin C. Eckley, representing the Michigan Builders' Supply association, told the committee.

Exempt Teachers Of Over 65 From Tenure Statute

Senate Concurs in Measure After First Amending It

Madison—(P)—The senate amended and concurred today in the Shimek bill exempting teachers over 65 from the state tenure law.

The amendment, introduced by Senator Roethe (R) Fennimore, chairman of the education committee, provided that the exemption should not apply to principals, superintendents or supervising teachers. Tenure for them should be continued, he said.

The bill was sent back to the house for approval of the change but may go into the hopper along with other measures proposing a more extensive revision of the tenure act. The assembly already has passed and sent to the senate the James bill repealing the tenure law outright.

A compromise proposal, sponsored by the Wisconsin School Boards association and opposed by teachers' organizations, would replace the 1937 act with a new statute giving school boards one year to discharge teachers before they acquire permanent status, exempting married

Glucose Used to Give Strength to Hunger-Striker

Forced Into Veins to Assure Sanity Hearing For Alleged Slayer

Enid, Okla.—(P)—Glucose forced into the veins of a hunger-striking accused slayer was expected to give him strength for a sanity hearing today—the twenty-second of the fast he started "because I'd rather die than go to trial."

His eyes starting from their sockets, his teeth and cheek bones showing through his emaciated face, 40-year-old Roy Murphy was borne into court on a stretcher yesterday for his trial on a charge he slew his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Murphy, Jan. 13.

District Judge J. W. Bird refused to grant a continuance, but ordered a sanity hearing. He instructed jurors that should Murphy be found insane he would be confined in a hospital until he could stand trial.

A county jail trustee told the jury Murphy curried ordered him away from his cell April 19, the day he began his fast, and told him to bring no more food.

Owen Watts, assistant attorney general said: "He started the fast with the deliberate purpose of evading trial."

Also awaiting trial is another brother, Bill Murphy, 45, who accompanied the defendant to Harry Murphy's cabin the night gun-play wrote a tragic end to a family argument over ownership of a cafe.

Senate Fails to Act On Bill for Earlier State Fishing Season

Madison—(P)—Efforts by Assemblyman Mark Catlin (R) Appleton, to open the fishing season Saturday instead of Monday, appeared doomed to failure today.

The senate adjourned at noon without acting on Catlin's bill to advance the season and indicated a disposition to let the measure die without a vote.

Unless there should be an unexpected change of heart tomorrow, the fishing season on trout, pike and other game and pan fish, except muskellunge and bass, will open Monday, May 15, as originally ordered by the conservation commission.

When the senate reconvenes tomorrow the Catlin bill would have to be put through under suspension of the rules and a separate bill passed allowing the governor to sign it in typewritten form. Opposition apparently was strong enough to prevent hurdling these obstacles.

Senator McDermid (P) Lady-smith, spoke against the bill when it came up as a special order today, having been passed by the assembly only yesterday.

Lutherans in Plea To Congress to End Propaganda in U. S.

Milwaukee—(P)—The Wisconsin district convention of the American Lutheran church today sent a petition to congress asking that propagandists "who are trying to embroil our country in a European war" be sought out and silenced.

The petition, which urged congress to use every means at its disposal to keep the United States out of "European entanglements" and alliances and out of war, said in part:

"There are powerful individuals and groups ceaselessly making propaganda to enmesh our government in European entanglement and foreign alliances. We believe that only the cultural elements of the native lands of our foreign-born citizens should find expression in their lives as Americans. Their political ties with their homelands should be completely severed."

"We therefore petition our congressmen and senators to make every effort to unearth the source of the pernicious war propaganda now being spread in America, and use every means to keep us from being drawn into a foreign war."

League Council Delays Session

Postpones Meeting for Week at Request of Soviet Russia

Geneva—(P)—At the request of soviet Russia the League of Nations today postponed its council session, originally set for next Monday, until a week later.

Russia was understood to have asked the postponement both to give Vladimir P. Potemkin, assistant foreign commissar, time to reach Geneva after reporting on his recent Near Eastern tour and to permit conversations with other powers on problems to be considered.

League sources said other council members had approved the Russian request.

Both Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax of Britain and Foreign Secretary Georges Bonnet of France are expected to attend (London) the Geneva meeting would provide opportunity for further British-Russian-French alliance negotiations.)

Two Youths Sentenced In Slaying of Negro

Milwaukee—(P)—Two 18-year-old boys were sentenced yesterday to 14 to 25 years in state prison, following conviction of the holdup-slaying of a Negro coal dealer March 18. A municipal court jury deliberated the case two hours. The prisoners are Joseph Grenier and Roosevelt Morton, a Negro.

Labor Groups for Health Program

Washington—(P)—A. F. of L. and CIO officials testified today in support of a proposal by Senator Wagner (D-N.Y.) for an expanded federal health program, while a representative of the Pennsylvania Medical society opposed it as creating "a danger of breaking down democracy in this country."

The witness testified at a senate labor committee hearing on legislation which would provide federal grants to states for various health activities.

"In Germany in 1850 they started these things and what is it now—a dictatorship?" Dr. C. L. Palmer of Harrisburg, chairman of the Pennsylvania medical society's committee on public health legislation, asserted.

Lee Pressman, counsel for the CIO, attributed opposition to the bill to "a reactionary group of officials of the American Medical association."

Matthew Well, representing the A. F. of L. urged enactment of the measure, contending that "the cost of medical care should be lowered so that it is within the reach of that large part of the population which has less than $1,500 income."

Assembly Passes Auto License Bill

Madison—(P)—The assembly revived today and passed the Schlachbach bill providing for distribution of automobile license plates by county clerks.

The bill was approved, 54 to 48, and sent to the senate after adoption of a motion for reconsideration of the house vote of May 4 by which passage had been refused. The reconsideration motion was offered by Assemblyman Genzmer (D) Mayville.

The bill is one of the measure, Assemblyman Schlachbach (R) La Crosse, contended that licenses could be issued by county clerks rather than a state office in Madison as at present, at a substantial saving and without any reduction in efficiency.

Schlachbach also is sponsoring the administration's bill for a consolidated state motor vehicle division to unify and simplify the functions of all departments now involved in an automobile and truck regulation.

After more than two months of indecision the assembly finally killed today the bill of Assemblyman Schlytter (R) Wittenberg, which would have forbidden insurance of town, village, city or school district property with the state fire insurance fund.

The bill was once given perliminary approval and sent to the finance committee. Upon its return from the committee the house refused to encross it and today turned down, 49 to 41, a motion by assemblyman Double (R) Milwaukee, for reconsideration.

Committee Opposed to Tavern Limit Measure

Madison—(P)—The Senate committee on state and local government today recommended non-concurrence in the Siebert bill limiting the number of taverns to one for each 500 population.

The committee report followed a hearing yesterday in which an amendment was proposed to delay the effective date from next Jan. 1 to June 1, 1940.

The measure would not apply to existing taverns, and authors of the amendment, Senators Greenquist (P), Racine, and Coakley (R), Beloit, said that persons who are now erecting buildings for taverns should not be "caught in the middle" if the bill is enacted.

The measure has been passed by the assembly, where it was introduced by Siebert (D), Kenosha.

Assaults of Farmer Sentenced to Prison

Waukesha—(P)—Two men who assaulted Carl Deznitz, elderly Waukesha county farmer in an attempt to obtain his money, were under sentence to state prison today.

Reinhold Fenslow, 51, of Milwaukee, was sentenced to one to twenty years. George W. Jorg, 19, of Milwaukee, was sentenced to one to seven years. Both pleaded guilty.

Britain, Rumania Sign Trade Accord.

Commons Informed

London—(P)—Oliver Stanley, president of the board of trade, announced in the house of commons today that Great Britain and Rumania had signed a trade agreement under which Britain would advance a credit of 15,000,000 (about $23,400,000).

Britain will take 200,000 tons of Rumanian wheat and the credits she will advance to Rumania will be used for the purchase of United Kingdom goods.

Stanley said the protocol of the agreement was signed in Bucharest today following the recent "successful" visit of a British trade mission.

It was expected Rumania mainly would purchase armaments with her credits.

Britain pushed the agreement as part of her campaign to offset Reichsfuehrer Hitler's economic penetration of central and southern Europe. (The British trade mission was sent to Bucharest after Rumania and Germany signed a trade agreement.)

Will of God Slaying Trial Nearing Close

New York—(P)—Louis Greenfield, 45, the mild-mannered milliner on trial for the death of his 16-year-old imbecile son, Jerome, sat dry-eyed and listened intently to his lawyer, Samuel Liebowitz, summed up the "will of God" slaying.

The lawyer outlined Greenfield's life from the time he returned from the war, through his courtship and marriage his happiness when a son was born. He told them of the slow but stunned realization of the parents that their boy was nothing but "a lump of flesh."

"Only a human being could have suffered so much," said Liebowitz, referring to Greenfield's years of sorrow over his only child. "A machine would have broken down one step. . . . Greenfield was not guilty of crime in a moral sense."

Mrs. Greenfield was sitting in the first row in Bronx county court. Spectators were visibly affected.

Old Rivermen Tell of Log Rafts Floated On Wisconsin River

Chicago—(P)—Four old rivermen testified for the federal government yesterday that time was when the Wisconsin river bore millions of feet of lumber to market annually.

They were the first witnesses at a federal power commission hearing on the Wisconsin Public Service corporation's declaration of intention to reconstruct a dam and build a power house on the Wisconsin river near Tomahawk.

On the ground the river is a navigable stream, the commission claims dams may be rebuilt only with its permission. It attempted to show through its witnesses today that the roaring days of 1870 the Wisconsin carried downstream 75 per cent of the white pine, jack pine and spruce that was cut in the northern forests. All its witnesses were men who rode the log rafts down to St. Louis.

German Army Officers Taking Leave of Spain

Madrid—(P)—German army officers heading homeward this month after fighting with General Franco's forces in the civil war plan to take with them a group of Spanish nationalist officers for a month's visit to the reich.

The Condor legion, German aviators commanded by General Von Richtofen, will sail from Vigo before the end of the month. Von Richtofen and other officers will go to Vigo from Leon where General Franco is expected to tell them goodbye.

Assembly Votes to Launch Its Own Investigation of Conservation Department

Madison—(P)—The assembly decided today to conduct its own investigation of the conservation department since the senate previously had expressed the inquiry.

The house, by a vote of 62 to 18, adopted a resolution by Gruska (R), Mosinee, directing the speaker to name a committee of five assemblymen with power to subpoena witnesses and records.

A joint resolution with the same purpose was passed by the assembly some time ago, but was killed by the senate.

Gruska's resolution calls for investigation of rumors of alleged excessive expenditure of funds for recreational advertising, duplication of administrative efforts, irregularities in construction and use of fire lanes, and miscellaneous charges relating to administration of game laws, and activities of department employees.

The author charged specifically today that H. W. Mackenzie, department director, had favored a relative in obtaining insurance on trucks operated by the conservation commission and that the state paid higher prices for feed used at the experimental game and fur farm near Poyette than did private operators of similar plants.

Assemblymen Graess (R), Starvocon Bay, and Genzmer (D), Mayville, urged rejection of the resolution, although Graess said he welcomed the hearings.

"If you give the commission a fair deal you will find out that a lot of the things you hear in barber shops are untrue," Graess said.

Genzmer advised against an investigation, declaring it would disrupt the personnel at a time when they are busy getting their annual program organized. He suggested the attorney general's office could conduct a John Doe inquiry that would produce less friction and bring the same results.

Ammon Opposes Promotion Plan Before Assembly

Says It Would Not be as Economical or Efficient As Present System

Madison—(AP)—A proposed Wisconsin promotional department would not be as "economical" nor as "efficient" as state advertising under present arrangements, Director Ralph E. Ammon of the department of agriculture and markets told the assembly judiciary committee yesterday.

Ammon disagreed with Assembly Speaker Thomson (R) of Richland Center, author of the measure providing for the creation of the department, who claimed it would "eliminate considerable duplication."

Ammon contended "a division, not a coordination" of promotional activities would result from the new department and estimated that salaries in the promotional department would reach $40,000, while those promoting agriculture in his department drew only $8,000 annually.

The suggested department would take over agricultural advertising of the department of agriculture and markets, recreational publicity of the conservation commission, merchandising activities of the Wisconsin Agricultural Authority, and a portion of the work formerly handled by the recently abolished department of commerce.

Bill Asks $250,000
Thomson said he would allocate $250,000 annually to the department and provide for the appointment of a nine-man advisory board by the governor with the senate's consent. A director, with an annual salary of not more than $7,500, would be named by the board.

Declaring a duplication of efficiency would exist, Ammon declared that agricultural promotion, especially in connection with cheese, must be carried on in close relation to the process the industry has made in the direction of quality and production.

Explaining that the department of agriculture and markets had avoided advertising, Ammon said the cheese industry "is not yet ready for it" because the "quality of the cheese and its packaging is not well enough identified to the average housewife."

A. J. Glover of Ft. Atkinson, editor of Hoard's Dairyman, said the cheese industry must "get together and turn out a more uniform product before going into national advertising—unless you want to waste a lot of money."

Discusses Co-ops
The merits of co-operatives were argued at length before the assembly committee on agriculture yesterday by opponents and proponents of a bill to repeal compulsory courses on cooperative marketing and consumers' cooperatives in the public schools.

Objectors, outnumbering proponents, came before the committee in a steady stream until a short recess time forced Chairman Ora R. Rice (R), Delavan, to adjourn the hearing.

Sponsor of the measure was the Marketing Associations, Inc., an organization representing retail business on an equal basis.

J. E. Moriarty, Milwaukee, spokesman for the organization, declared the purpose of the bill was to put the co-ops and private business on an equal basis.

Others favoring the measure included Theodore Stickle, Milwaukee, representing the Furniture Dealers association, and H. A. Lewis, Stevens Point, of the Retail Hardware association, who declared they objected to "paying for something aimed at our destruction."

Opposing the bill, Ed Malchese of Pulaski contended the cooperative movement should remain a part of the school curriculum as banking or any other study. He represented the Equity Sales association.

Also registering opposition to the measure were Milo Swanton of Madison, secretary of the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture; Harry Rank Elkhorst, secretary of the Walworth County Consumer Co-op; Lee Carter, Whitefish, and Walter Lyons, of Madison, both members of former co-ops.

Seek Reinstatement
Several legislators and dairy group representatives petitioned the assembly agriculture committee yesterday to report for adoption a resolution providing that J. W. Moore, a dismissed cheese inspector, be reinstated until completion of a pending legislative investigation of the department of agriculture and markets.

Moore, appearing personally before the committee, declared he had been "fired" for insubordination after offering the department constructive suggestions which subsequently had been adopted.

No one spoke against the resolution, which was sponsored by Assemblyman Theodore Swanson (P), Ellsworth. Director Ralph E. Ammon, if the department, who ordered Moore's dismissal, did not attend the hearing, stating he was too busy with other matters.

Supporters of the resolution included Assemblyman Nicholas Biehler (D) of Beloit, who instigated the investigation of the department, Earl B. Whitling, Gillett, president of the Wisconsin Cheese-makers association, L. E. Kopitzke, Marion, representative of the Northeastern Wisconsin Cheese-makers association, and Paul Weiss of Barnum, editor of the Wisconsin Dairyman's News.

5 Appleton Jaces at Hero Award Ceremony Held in Two Rivers

Five members of the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce attended a hero's award ceremony at Two Rivers last night held by the junior chamber of that city.

The Appleton delegates were Harold Finger, H. L. Davis, Jr., Henry Williamsen, Fred Boughton, and Harold Stout. Boughton is state chairman for the hero's award program.

Francis (Buddy) Lonzo was the person honored at the Two Rivers ceremony. During the last 10 years he has saved six people from drowning. Lonzo will be one of the contenders of the state hero medal which will be awarded at the Wisconsin Junior Chamber of Commerce convention at Wausau May 19-21.

on the opposite shore and shot water across the narrow river. A tugboat was forced to hug the opposite bank.

Robert Thomas, a witness, said a "sudden explosion" hurled flames "about 300 feet in the air." Smoke was visible on the south edge of the loop, several miles away.

South Chicago hospital said two men identified as David Marvin and Clifford Over were brought there in critical condition. Less seriously injured, attendants said, were Frank Gallant, and Joseph Leirvik, badly burned.

Floyd Dedone, a state department of agriculture employee, described his escape thus:

Describes Escape
"I was standing just 50 yards away when all of a sudden there was an explosion. Something hit me on the head and the leg. All I remember was that I started crawling away, then someone ran up and began dragging me."

He was taken to a hospital and was released after examination. Daniel Cameron, superintendent of construction on a dock being built from the window of a construction shack 300 feet away from the elevator, and then into the Calumet river by the force of the explosion.

Lloyd Bourne, a boat workman, related:

"I saw a tremendous burst of flame at the top of the elevator and an instant later came the blast. I was looking in the direction of the shaft and saw Cameron catapulted into the window into the river. We all ran for our lives and I did not see Cameron again."

John Lulich, grocer, said he was standing in front of his store several blocks away when the explosion occurred. "The next thing I knew my front windows had been blown in and I was standing in a litter of glass."

Illinois Sales Tax Is Expected to be Extended Two Years

Springfield, Ill. — (AP)— Illinois' 3 per cent sales tax and its companion 3 per cent levy on utility sales are on the verge of being extended another two years by the legislature.

The ward bills to continue the taxes at the present rates until July 1, 1941 moved up to third reading in the house late yesterday without a dissenting voice and may be called today for final enactment. They have passed the senate.

The bills are Democratic administration measures but Republican leaders as well as Democrats existing in opposition to the bill. The two taxes controlled house. The two taxes constitute the state's principal revenue source. The sales levy is estimated by the finance department to yield $80,000,000 annually for the next two years while the utility levy is estimated to produce $8,700,000 a year.

All of the utility tax revenue and a third of the sales tax proceeds go to relief.

Tavern Closing Law Defeated in Senate

Madison—(AP)—The senate today killed the Paulson bill for a statewide 1 o'clock a. m. closing law for taverns after amending it so that even the author was forced to vote against the measure. The vote was 23 to 4.

Senator Paulson (P) LaCrosse, a minister, disowned his bill when the senate adopted amendments by Jimmie (D) Milwaukee, allowing taverns to remain open from 6 a. m. to 2 o'clock a. m. and another by Gettelman (R) Milwaukee, to lift all restrictions on New Year's day.

"I feel now that I must vote against my bill," Paulson said. "If it passes the last amendment will be worse than the first."

Earlier the senate rejected an amendment to close all taverns on Sunday. Present law forbids sale of liquor after 1 o'clock a. m. but some communities allow taverns to remain open for the sale of beer.

Favor Ban on Obscene Pictures in Magazines

Madison—(AP)—A group of persons appearing before the assembly welfare committee yesterday unanimously endorsed a bill by Assemblyman Joseph Schmitz (R) of Germantown, forbidding the sale of obscene pictures and displays in magazines.

Offering a sample of magazine clipping containing many nude poses, Schmitz told the committee that "suggestive" publications have circulations running into the millions and are available to the "young and old alike."

"Public opinion has caused the removal of the worst magazines," he said, "but the least relaxation of vigilance brings back many of the offensive publications. Legislation is the only permanent cure."

KILLED SON BECAUSE HE LOVED HIM
Louis Greenfield (left), held for the "mercy slaying" of his 16-year-old imbecile son Jerry, is shown on the witness stand in New York being questioned by his attorney, Samuel Leibowitz. "It was the will of God," cried Greenfield, "I killed him because I loved him."

Teachers Disagree With State Superintendent as They Fight Merger of Educational Boards

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Numerous and exceedingly vocal opponents jammed a legislative hearing room yesterday afternoon to criticize one of the Heil administration's major, and most far-reaching reorganization measures, the proposal to consolidate all public educational functions on the state level in a single state board of education and a commissioner of education.

Only John Callahan, state superintendent of public instruction whose title the bill would change to "commissioner of education," and who would become chief executive officer of all state school functions, and the League of Women Voters appeared to register their favor of the bill.

Most of the critics however were institutional opponents, teachers, department heads, college presidents, and local school directors who would be affected—they felt adversely—if the reorganization bill becomes law.

The reorganization measure has been before Wisconsin legislatures for years, and consolidation has been an issue in state politics since territorial days 100 years ago.

9-Member Board
The present bill would allow the governor to name nine members of the board of education for nine year terms, but specifies that two each must be members of present boards which it will replace, including the board of regents of the state university, the state normal board, and the board of vocational education.

The board would succeed to the powers and duties of the university board, the teachers' college board, the mining school board, the board of vocational and adult education, and the department of public instruction. Divisions would be created within the new general department of education, including a division of general education, a division of higher education, and a division of vocational and adult education.

Callahan said that he has been supporting educational consolidation bills since 1913, and that the present proposal "is the best bill of its kind yet put before the legislature." He said that the new board could efficiently handle school problems which now are being negotiated by the problem of impoverished school districts in the northern counties, and the excess of teacher training institutions.

Representatives of the League of Women Voters agreed with Callahan in his praise of the bill.

The long parade of opponents was headed by William Card, who said he represented an impressive list of organizations including the Wisconsin Federation of Labor, the

County Boards to Hold Convention Next Month
Outagamie county officials today received invitations to attend the annual meeting of the Wisconsin County Boards association June 6, 7 and 8 at LaCrosse. Arrangements for the convention now are underway.

Roof Fire at Home Causes $400 Damage
Damage of about $400 was caused by a roof fire at the home of John Peck, 920 N. Morrison street, about 7:30 this morning. The blaze was put out by firemen. The fire burned down through the roof and into the attic. Firemen laid 650 feet of hose to fight the blaze.

Three Branches Of Methodism are Formally United

Plan Approved Without Dissent; New Church Has 8,000,000 Members

Kansas City — (AP)—Nine hundred delegates representing three previously separate branches of Methodism carried back to their churches today the message:

"The Methodist church is. Long live the Methodist church."

The words were spoken by Bishop John M. Moore, of Dallas, as the delegates voted approval formally and without dissent last night of the plan of union already recommended by the Methodist Episcopal church, south, and the Methodist Protestant church. The combined church has nearly 8,000,000 members.

Two weeks' work of perfecting a plan of government for the new church was completed without encountering legal action threatened at the outset of the uniting conference by a group of south church laymen.

Threatened Court Action
The group, known as the Laymen's Organization for Preservation of the Southern Methodist church, asserted at Atlanta as the conference ended that "its facts were illegal and the plan impossible of being carried out."

Spokesmen for the laymen's organization said court action would be instituted in South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi and Tennessee. Delegates voted down yesterday by the narrowest margin of the conference—384 to 371—the appeal of women for full clergy rights.

While many details must be worked out the conference:

Established for administrative purposes five geographical jurisdictions and a sixth comprising all Negro churches, the latter tending to heal the wound which led to establishment of the southern church before the Civil war.

Split 111 Years Ago
Saw the election by Protestant branch delegates of two bishops—their first since they split from the parent body 111 years ago in a protest against too much Episcopal power.

Provided for election of new bishops by jurisdictions.

Assigned to most cases for life, the 37 active bishops of the three churches, sending 12 of them to new residences.

Harmonized the disciplines of the three churches, taking parts from each but adding nothing not included previously in one of them.

Voted liberalization of South and Protestant branches by allowing ministers to officiate at marriages of "innocent parties" to divorces resulting from mental and physical cruelty.

Approved a "social creed" including a clause pledging support of any members who may be "conscientious objectors" to war.

Set the first general conference for next April.

Hambrecht expressed concern lest the wide difference between the problem of the out-of-school individual reached by the vocational schools may result in a depreciation of vocational school standards if they are merged with other school agencies.

E. J. Dempsey of Oshkosh, veteran head of the board of teachers colleges regents, asserted that the bill would give too much power to Callahan (although Dempsey said Callahan is an old friend, he won't last forever). He said that Callahan under the bill would properly be identified as "the high commissioner of education."

Dempsey recited a little history and pointed out that a proposal for a central educational agency had been frowned upon in the constitution of Wisconsin which preceded Wisconsin's achievement of statehood in 1848, and that the same idea had failed in other states.

He explained that $13,000,000 a year would be in the hands of nine men. "I don't believe it's practical."

College representatives, J. J. Handley of the WFL and numerous local vocational directors appeared in opposition. Handley said he feared the results of the discontinuance of employee and labor representation in the administration of vocational education. Herb Heilig of the Appleton vocational school, said both the chamber of commerce and the trades council of his city are united in opposition. "Both are worried about nine men and nine years. When all are represented, none need fear," he observed.

Sawall Guilty Of Fish Charge

Jury Absolves New London Man of Resisting an Officer

Waupaca—A circuit court jury last night found Clifford Sawall, 26, New London, guilty of illegal possession of game fish and not guilty of resisting an officer. Judge Herman J. Severson deferred sentence until Saturday morning. Testimony was taken yesterday morning and afternoon, the jury retiring at 4:30 and deliberating five hours.

Sawall was arrested on complaint of George Whalen, Waupaca county conservation warden. He pleaded not guilty in justice court at New London and was bound over to circuit court where he pleaded guilty and sentence was deferred. Subsequently, he again reversed his plea and a trial was conducted. Sawall has been convicted of illegal possession of game fish on five previous occasions.

Four wardens, Whalen; Gordon Bacon, Oconto; Clyde Sonnenberg, Florence, and O. K. Johnson, Shawano, apprehended Sawall on the Wolf river near New London about 8 o'clock Friday night, April 7. They testified he refused to leave his boat, threw away seven walleyed pike and threatened Johnson with an oar.

The New London man said he had been drinking and didn't recall threatening the warden.

The case was the last to be heard by Judge Severson during the current term. He will leave Monday for Portage county.

Perhaps the most striking and attractive set of stamps to be issued this year has just been released by Rumania. The set, in 14 values, commemorates the founding of Rumania's dynasty, 100 years ago.

This largest — and richest — Balkan state did not come into existence until 1881. Thus its postal authorities apparently are calculating the beginning of the dynasty from the birth of its founder in 1839.

Rumania was formed from two Turkish principalities that were under Russian protection — Moldavia and Wallachia. These two areas were united in 1861 under Prince Alexander Cuza. His well-meaning but ruthless reforms brought his downfall and Prince Carol (or Charles) of the Hohenzollern line was elected. Carol was the first of the present dynasty.

In 1878, Rumania's sovereign independence finally was recognized and Carol was proclaimed king. Rumania's present king is young, romantic Carol II, who lost his claim to the throne for several years because of a divorce but was recalled to the throne in 1930.

The stamps are remarkable for their richness of color and for their clearness. The one illustrated on the left is the 7-lei value in dark brown showing a statue of the first king on a horse. The other is the 12-lei value in blue which shows a portrait of the king. Perforation of all the stamps is 14.

Would Honor Composer

If several of America's outstanding musicians have their way, a stamp honoring the memory of the famed composer, Stephen Foster, soon will be issued.

Andre Kostelanetz, noted orchestra leader acting as chairman of a committee which included such famed musical figures as Lawrence Tibbett, baritone, and Deems Taylor, music commentator — got Congressman Lex Green of Florida to introduce a bill requesting the issuance of such a stamp.

'Insult' Removed

Because of intense bitterness it created, the stamp was hurriedly withdrawn and revised. The helmet and swords — signs of German humiliation — do not appear on the new stamp, which is shown at the right. The original stamp's price soared from a few cents to 75 cents almost immediately after it was withdrawn.

TWO WINTERS OF WORK

Lloyd Hegner, route 1, Seymour, worked two winters before he completed the inlaid table pictured above. About 8,000 separate pieces of wood, many of them from foreign lands such as Africa and South America, are contained in the table. The original design included the American flag with 48 stars, sail boats on the water at sundown, hearts, diamonds, and geometric figures. Hegner considers this work his hobby.

Senators Howl About Economy But Don't Even Vote to Get It

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—In view of the performance put on by the senate over the agriculture department appropriation bill this week, the big talk about economy which we have heard from various senators stacks up pretty much as empty wind.

During a five-hour session on Monday, the senate voted 108 increases or new items. In not one instance was a reduction voted. Never was there a roll-call, so that everyone avoided the unpleasant duty of going on record. Only rarely was there a word of debate. Item by item, the senate inched up the appropriations by a total of nearly $400,000,000—or $381,000,000 if you want the figure—above what the house voted.

Throughout all of this the economy minded senators were strangely silent. They did not even try to put the senators on record by asking for roll-calls. They were there—at least they answered a quorum call in the midst of the proceedings—those senators who make indignant speeches about Roosevelt's extravagance. They are listed as being present—Bailey of North Carolina, Taft of Ohio, Glass of Virginia, Burke of Nebraska, Bridges of New Hampshire, Byrd of Virginia, Tydings of Maryland and Vandenberg of Michigan.

Vandenberg did get in on the debate once to urge that the constitution be changed so that the president could veto single items in an appropriation bill. Thereafter he lapsed into silent acquiescence along with the other big-talking economizers.

It was again evidence of the old political maxim once cited by Senator Ashurst that when it comes down to voting appropriations, senators have the courage of their constituents.

Practically all of the increases were recommended by the senate agriculture committee which is headed by that veteran anti-Roosevelt Democrat, old Cotton Ed Smith. For hours the procedure rolled through item after item with no more formality than the reading of the proposed increase by the clerk and the mumbled word from the chair, "without objection, amendment agreed to."

King Points With Alarm But It's No Go

Only half a dozen times was this routine interrupted with explanations as to the meaning of certain items. Once Senator King of Utah relieved the monotony by a long, earnest speech on economy, packed with figures. But after he finished pointing with alarm, the senate resumed and rolled through some 50 more increases without debate or record vote.

It would have you to list all of the items. The senate added $10,000 to an item for testing of forest products; took a $5,000 appropriation for investigation of lowland hardwoods in the lower Mississippi river basin and jumped it to $10,000; added $50,000 to a $200,000 appropriation for investigating insects affecting ornamental trees; jumped a $446,000 item for control of the pink bollworm to $1,366,000, and so on, but by bit, always pushing the figure up, not down.

Senator Barkley, Democratic leader, was half an hour late for Secretary Hull's fancy luncheon for the crown prince and princess of Denmark because he had to stay in the senate to nurse through an increase of $75,000 for the tobacco inspection service. He finally made the luncheon, but, far more important, he got his appropriation.

Don't Even Call For A Vote Of Record

Some weeks ago Senator Pat Harrison announced that a determined drive must be made to cut all appropriations. Senators, and particularly anti-Roosevelt Democrats and of course the Republicans, wail in holy horror about New Deal extravagance. They go to chamber of commerce conventions and bask in thunderous applause with their pleas for economy. But put them right up against an appropriation bill and you hear not a peep out of them—not even a call for a record vote so the spenders can be segregated from the economizers.

Around Washington most of the economy talk is regarded as bunk. Anyone who knows politics knows that you will get no real economy until the president, or a president, puts on the heat. For various reasons there is little disposition here now to put on the heat.

I am not sure by any means that drastic economy would help. If there is to be any holding down, it ought to come in these departments:

ANOTHER ILLINOIS SENATOR

The record of Illinois in the United States senate is one of the worst in the country. In the last 30 years two men, Lorimer and Smith, have been thrown out because of the corrupt manner of their elections.

And now there is Mr. Slattery, named by Governor Horner to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Senator Lewis.

Mr. Slattery was promoted from Chairman of the Illinois Commerce Commission to wear the toga. That commission regulates public utilities in Illinois. It fixes their rates and supervises their lives.

Last August a daughter of Mr. Slattery went into a broker's office and bought a thousand shares of the stock of the Commonwealth Edison Company which furnishes electric current to Chicago, and paid therefor the sum of $25,000 in cash. Senator Slattery admits she got the money from him, in cash. After the market had improved the stock was sold at a profit, the broker's check was turned into cash and that money, it is also claimed, had been put away in a strong box.

These are funny dealings for a man experienced enough in business affairs to become a senator of the United States. There is an odor about the affair that does not resemble either roses or lilacs.

Of course Senator Slattery had a right to give his daughter a present as he claims was the case with this $25,000. And, of course, the daughter had a right to buy the stock of a public utility, just as she had the right to take the proceeds of a large check in cash and put it in a safety deposit vault. But there are numerous rights, which when exercised, create a strange conclusion.

Senator Slattery as chairman of the regulatory board knew more about the utilities in his state than any other single person. He was by necessity intimately familiar with their business and finances, their modes of operation and executive personnel. So his judgement in relation to the value of their stock should have been sound. But the high impropriety of his purchase of any of their stock, directly or indirectly, and the equally high impropriety of such a purchase by a member of his family are too clear for argument.

Here it should be noted, is a case where, so far as the evidence presently deduced is concerned, the utility involved was not only free of blame but entirely innocent of knowledge of what was transpiring. Yet the very transaction should result in a better understanding by the public of how, quite often, the utilities are involuntary victims of the plans and schemes of those who may be put into power over them.

Fortunately, Mr. Slattery has never been identified as a Tory, an economic royalist or even a conservative.

DOES WISCONSIN NEED A SEA SERPENT?

The captain of a halibut schooner out of an Oregon port sighted at very close range a monster of the deep, a sea serpent, one of those fellows with a serpentine neck, a head like a prehistoric tiger and eyes that shine like electric lights.

If the captain had only possessed this creature we might have had the chance of transplanting the species to Wisconsin where our inland lakes and the broad expanses of our great waters have lacked but one thing and that is a monster. This Oregon denizen of the deep was the sort we could use for, according to the skipper, he just came alongside in friendly fashion, sort of smiled at the crew and then swallowed a 20 pound halibut to ease the emptiness of his mid section. All that is necessary to save the children is enough 20 pound fish around to appease the monster.

And since no sea serpent ever can be discounted because skipper never said so, it would be altogether worth our while to have a sea serpent and to have a decent one.

At least we prefer to believe the skipper, having swallowed enough political yarns in the last few years to have acquired something of a habit in that respect.

THE NAZI WAY AND OURS

Down in Massachusetts former Governor LaFollette took as his text for an address that "the Nazi way of life and our way of life cannot exist in one world."

We would like to know why it cannot. And we ask this question because "the Nazi way of life" has always existed upon the face of the earth and so has ours.

The world is a big place in spite of our swift means of transportation. The strangest sorts of government have existed concurrently through the ages. In Borneo, Guam and Sumatra, Persia, Afghanistan and Baluchistan, Venezuela and Honduras, Malaysia, Bali and Madagascar we have a variety of governments, many of which are more absolute than anything ever thought out at Berlin.

We do not like to dispute Mr. LaFollette who has recently returned from tramping the Nazi strand but his observation that 75 per cent of the Nazis are for "dumping Hitler, Goebbels, Goering and Hess in the North Sea" can hardly be accurate else that is just about the place they would be dumped. Mr. LaFollette naturally cannot see how the German people can uphold these rulers but when the majority of public opinion goes as heavily against them as 3 to 1 nothing can support them.

We do not begin to understand the Nazis by merely berating them since they do not agree with us. The very phenomenon of their ascendancy to power is completely ignored until we come to appreciate that rankling wrongs and cruel injustices finally brewed a bitterness among the German people that induced them to accept the sort of rulers they have in the hope and with the expectation that in that manner could they undo the wrongs inflicted upon them by the democracies in a spirit of great brotherly love.

Nor should Mr. LaFollette forget that America survived during all those decades when the greater part of the world was practically upon the Nazi pattern of today, and that our country plunged ahead until it obtained its present position of preeminence by minding its own business and letting the Nazis mind theirs.

AFTER 724 YEARS

One of the most precious documents still in existence, the Magna Charta, is now in New York where it will be on exhibition at the British Pavilion at the World's Fair. While America in its Bill of Rights and Declaration of Independence has given to the world documents of eternal life, precious beyond all effort to describe, the Magna Charta, in all fairness, must be considered the basic fire out of which these vital sparks were struck.

And the Battle of Runnymede, which forced King John's signature to Magna Charta still, at times, continues, although the longer great human values have been established, the more certain is their continuance.

Let the vision of England in the year 1215 arise. The stern-visaged knights and barons had taken to the field of battle against their king, had committed that act which under the law of every land in that age meant the loss of one's head in shame at the block. But their ruler, who had the appointment of judges, had been found a purveyor of justice to the highest bidder, and then, as now, every fiber in a man's makeup resented and abhorred that practice. Among other agreements entered into upon that famous occasion King John agreed that, "to no one will we sell, to no one will we refuse or delay right or justice."

And the spirit of those ancient nobles upon the field of Runnymede demanding a square deal for everyone from their sovereign is what motivates the American people today in supporting the Attorney General of the United States in his determination that rascals shall not sit upon the bench and that rogues shall not have private keys to judicial chambers.

With the honest errors of judges as they seek to ascertain justice for litigants the people have the most profound tolerance. After all, who knows where justice lies if an honest judiciary cannot find it? But when justice must be wheedled, when it may be bought, or, just as bad, when it is obtainable through political influence, it is necessary to go again to Runnymede.

"A KINGDOM FOR A HORSE"

If the President should fail in his persistent effort to revive the Florida Ship Canal may we not suggest that he might still build some sort of a Chinese wall?

That, at least, is one experiment he has not undertaken to date, and why does not seem clear.

Mr. Roosevelt's predilections for his vacation resort points, dear old Quoddy up on the Maine Coast for the summer and Florida for the winter, and his sterling efforts to "better" these sections of the country have been qualities associated with longship since long before the Ming dynasty.

Mr. Roosevelt must do something desperate before long because the straw vote of the American Institute of Public Opinion is going heavily against him and just as heavily in favor of Dewey.

"HELLO, YOU—!"

The New York Court of Appeals has decided that calling people bad names over the telephone is no crime. A woman in the Bronx, it seems, had made a woman in Harlem and made a practice of ringing her up many times a day and deliver a trade of epithets, starting with "you lousy bum" and ranging through

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—People and Places: Peter Martin, who was a dancer at the old Waldorf down where the Empire State Building now stands the sky above Fifth Avenue and 54th Street, thinks the Sunday society parade and moved over from Fifth to Park Avenue. Half a dozen fashionable hostesses frothing on Park Avenue do pour forth many prominent and smartly dressed people—the Waldorf-Astoria itself, the Ambassador, the Park Lane and the Marquetry (where O. O. McIntyre lived his last years and died), to name four. The run-of-mine parades, however, still stick to Fifth Avenue where, when not looking at each other, they may gaze into the windows of the smart shops.

Professor George C. D. Odell of Columbia University is writing a history of Broadway's greatest pride—the theatre. He takes the business of make-believe from colonial days and brings it up to "Hella a Poppin." The work is far from finished, yet the Professor already has turned out ten volumes!

Socialites nowadays have many fingers in the entertainment pie. There is Jock Whitney who has backed nearly everything from lavish stage shows to nightclubs, not to mention moving pictures. There are debutantes who marry band leaders—Mrs. Hal Kemp was a year ago the cunning little debutante, Martha Stephenson—and any number of society buds, such as Barbara Bannister and Adelaide Moffet, who sing for your supper at the night clubs.

Less obvious but of equal importance are those prominent socialites who make their contributions to current entertainment by sponsoring talent. To these people with money who prefer to patronize art anonymously are indebted many artists, both vocal and instrumental, who have won places on the operatic stage and the symphony orchestra platforms.

Charles Baum, the curly-haired band leader, can thank society for his chance to show what he can do with a baton and a piano. Only a year ago he was struggling to get New York to listen to him. The very social Jules Gizenzer became enthusiastic over Baum's pianoplaying and orchestral style. He whispered his enthusiasm to another socialite, Vincent Astor; and Astor agreed with him. Out of this has come a contract for Baum to play through this summer and next at the Iridium Room of the St. Regis. It was fairly easy for Astor to arrange. Astor owns the St. Regis!

Johnny Roventini who pages that man over the air in one of the cleverest double entendres of modern advertising, is short—43 inches, toe to top. That is why studio engineers have just built him a special microphone cut down to his size and painted red to harmonize with his page boy uniform.

The only place in the Times Square section using girls to serve liquor is the Piccadilly Circus Bar where, in the Charing Cross Corner, service is by "Nippies," or waitresses. One of the points emphasized in engaging the "Nippies" was that they must have beautiful hands.

MY YESTERDAY

Made happy by news that Erin O'Brien-Moore, after more than three months in the hospital where she was close to death from horrible burns suffered when her dress caught fire from a carelessly thrown match, has recovered sufficiently to be taken home.

Briefly to the Glass Hat, and paused to chat with Harry Richmond, deeply tanned, who sat alone at a table near the door. To a night club where a birthday party was in progress, with 25 girls from the chorus of "Hella a Poppin" sitting at a long table, and not nearly as pretty as one might imagine after seeing them on the stage.

Stopped at the Meadowbrook, and Elliott Roosevelt sat with a small party of friends, unrecognized by the other diners. Also unnoticed, for that matter, was Clifton Webb, the actor-dancer, and his companion, Hope Williams.

10 YEARS AGO

Thursday, May 9, 1929

A move to establish the office of a city purchasing agent was blocked before it gained much momentum at the meeting of the common council Wednesday night. Alderman Mike Steinhilber introduced a resolution to create the office but received little support.

Nicholas Bruell of Sherwood had been selected as the state winner in one of the two monthly child photograph contests which were a part of the nationwide $30,000 prize contest. Sheriff Fred W. Giese had declared war on bootleggers who peddled their wares from automobiles and hip pockets and dance halls and road houses.

Mrs. Elsie Felton was elected president of the Eagles auxiliary to succeed Mrs. Paul Schroeder at the annual meeting Wednesday afternoon at Eagles hall.

25 YEARS AGO

Thursday, May 14, 1914

Judge Thomas H. Ryan, Joseph J. Plank and Thomas Flanagan represented the Appleton council of the Knights of Columbus at the state convention of the order at Beloit the previous day.

Frank P. Young had accepted the presidency of the Appleton Civic League.

Officers of the All College club of Lawrence for 1914-15 were to be all Appleton students. At the chapel that morning Albert Franke was elected president over Elmer Abrahamson of Sparta by a vote of 187 to 133. Walter Tippet was elected vice president over Russell Cheney of Baraboo. Miss Irma Erb was unanimously elected secretary and Merrill Youtz was elected treasurer over Mervin Jacobson of Oconomowoc.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

BENEATH THE SHADOW

He walks beneath the shadow of Death's wings
So close that he can hear
The tones that a celestial choir sings.
Night falls. . . . He knows no fear.

Life has been kind to him. . . . His was no dull
And lonely pilgrimage.
But every day was bright and beautiful
From youth to sober age

Ingratitude to a kind fate is not Part of his good life's plan.
Beneath Death's quiet wings he casts his lot,
And he will die a man!

The Court of Appeals, freeing the Bronx woman from a disorderly conduct charge, held that no breach of the peace could have been caused by insults via telephone at a range of three miles.

That we should think, might depend. There's no danger of physical blows being exchanged over the wires. On the other hand, what's to keep the insulted party from walking, running or riding three miles and arriving still hot enough to breach the peace plentifully? But if the courts will guarantee protection, we can see great possibilities in this decision. Roy, hand us the phone book, we've a lot of calls to make.—Cleveland Press.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—All the King's precautions taken to see that King George VI does not take any chance of being caught in a possible war zone on his visit to America show sharply how things have changed since the good old days when a king was no king at all unless he fought at the head of his troops.

Grover George that he is kept far from any likely danger zone. He is probably as brave personally as the next man, but his subjects never would submit him to the risk of actually coming under fire of the enemy.

Might Cause Furore
Social and economic disturbances which might result in war time from loss of the king would outbalance by far his limited value as a moral force at the head of his soldiers.

But English kings used to fight with their troops. King Harold, last of the Anglo-Saxon rulers, personally directed his men against invading William the Conqueror in 1066. An arrow put out his eye.

Harold defended himself to the utmost, but he was sorely wounded in his eye by the arrow, and suffered grievous pain from the blow," said an old chronicler of the battle.

If Harold had not lost the power to command his troops the whole history of England might have been different. As it was he was killed on the field and William became king.

King Edward III and his straight shooting British archers walloped King Philip VI and his French knights in the battle of Crecy, near Picardy, in 1346. Both kings personally led their troops, and King Edward's 16-year-old son, the Black Prince, was a whopping success in battle.

Frederick A Strategist

Almost in our own time the German emperor, Frederick the Great, directed his own troops in battle, although hand to hand combat between kings and their enemies was a thing of the past by that time.

Frederick was one of the outstanding strategists of all history and in spite of our present sour relations with Germany, his statue stands at the entrance to the Army War College within two miles of the White House, a highly honored piece of bronze.

Just now there doesn't seem to be a king in all the land who would be worth deuces up as an army commander in the field. A possible exception is King Riza Khan Pahlevi of Persia, who did battle at the head of troops to win his way to his present job.

The Prince of Wales, now Duke of Windsor, once came under fire while visiting the trenches during the World War as a lad and displayed all England at such risky business, although afterward he was much praised for his spunk.

Outside of perhaps a few African tribal chiefs, the only head of a people who is a real fighting man is General Chiang Kai-shek, who is doing fair to middling well opposing the Japanese in China.

If he had a mite more technical training, Herr Hitler might do moderately well. He seems to know uncannily well when to strike, even if he doesn't know the details of how.

WELL I'LL TELL YOU
Hollywood—Everytime I get to thinking about man's inhumanity to man, I just sorta choke up. The same goes for woman's inhumanity to man, too. I guess if all the males who've ever been mistreated by women were laid end to end, each one of 'em would rise up and say: "Yes, dear."

Uncle Hod's boy, Dud, came home from school cryin' not long ago. He said, "Poppa, that teacher's all the time pickin' on me!" Well, that made Hod mighty angry. He grabbed the boy and they both went down to the Public School. Then Hod said to the teacher, "Look here, woman, how come you keep pickin' on my little boy?" She said, "I haven't been pickin' on him. He merely became aggravated when I tried to make him catch up with the rest of the class; like this 'Dud, how much is two and two?"

Dud yelled, "Look, poppa, she's startin' in again!"

ANOTHER APPEASEMENT AT MUNICH?

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—It would be churlish, and unintelligent, to cavil over the relative merits and shortcomings of the Progressive and Republican plans to reorganize the state government.

Wyngaard

But the Progressive scheme is now definitely dead, while the Republican plan is very much alive. Which makes it significant to compare the public interest shown in the two opposing programs of reorganization.

Phil LaFollette was continuously in the spotlight while he was re-shuffling bureaus and commissions, and pretty consistently attacked by individuals and organizations who disagreed with him, or weren't convinced of the worthiness of his motives.

But while the Republican reorganization plan is far more extensive, has far greater patronage possibilities (which was one of the criticisms offered two years ago), and proposes an infinitely more profound change in the administrative scheme, there is a startling lack of public interest in the whole business. Legislators are getting very little mail on the various proposals, and hearings are poorly attended.

Either public opinion is tired of reorganization talk, or the Republican plan is so far superior to the Progressive idea that it will be approved without any open opposition.

EXPEDIENT

They're telling a little story around the statehouse which may be illustrative of bureaucratic expediency.

A truck load of cheese was recently dispatched to Washington by state dairy publicity agents to be distributed for publicity purposes in the national capital.

It was expected that Wisconsin's representatives in the capital would share equally in the publicity campaign on the cheese's arrival. Certain Wisconsin's senior senator, who has represented the state in Washington since 1925, could have been expected to participate in the ceremonies before the Washington cameras.

But the master of ceremonies was Senator Alexander Wiley, who has been in Washington approximately 16 weeks. Senator LaFollette wasn't even invited to take part, although with a reelection campaign coming on, he could have been expected to be just as anxious to get in front of the cameras as the Republican newcomer.

Note: It need not be mentioned that Progressives are angry.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

FATTY DEGENERATION

Most persons have heard of "fatty degeneration of the heart" or "fatty degeneration of some other organ. It sounds pretty bad and it is so. If any reader of this perchance has fatty degeneration let me say right here that I'm sorry about that, but it is a waste of his or her limited time reading further, for there's nothing more I can say about it.

But I do hope that a good many readers who haven't got it yet but are certainly training for it will stick around until I explain what it is and how to prevent it from developing. While it is probably true that harm is the likely consequence of laymen's delving in medical literature, reading about symptoms and diagnosis of various diseases, wonders whether he is developing, on the other hand bits of information a normal person gains from reading about health and prophylaxis seldom do any harm and often do good.

Fatty degeneration occurs not in fat folk so much as in the merely flabby. It is not to be regarded as a "collection of fat around the heart" or as "turning of the heart muscle to fat."

Pathologists of an earlier day debated the process by which fatty degeneration occurs. Most of them attempted to distinguish what they called "fatty infiltration" from fatty degeneration, in the muscle of the heart or in other organs. Perhaps they were led astray by the observation that overweight or moderate obesity often precedes by ten years or more the development of definite organic disease of the heart or other organs. From the newer knowledge of nutrition it is now generally recognized that fatty infiltration, that is, a deposit of fat over or between muscles or muscle cells, is a comparatively insignificant condition, but true fatty degeneration is always serious, for it is an actual conversion of the substance, the protoplasm, of the cell into fat. Of course fat replacing cellular substance cannot function as muscle cell or a cell of any organ or tissue should function, and so fatty degeneration is a kind of slow death of the cells tissues or organs involved. But please bear in mind it is as likely to occur in a person who is not overweight as it is in a person who is too stout.

Wasting diseases such as cancer and tuberculosis, prolonged fevers, pernicious anemia and advancing age are common causes of fatty degeneration especially in the heart. Fatty degeneration occurs in the muscle wall of the arteries too. The diaphragm may be involved.

The most obvious and striking characteristic of fatty degeneration of muscle, heart or other muscle, is flabbiness.

How to train for fatty degeneration: Eat, drink, smoke and watch hired professionals work, play or perform. Flabbiness is a luxury which only the well-to-do can afford to try to conceal.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Eggs

Are eggs boiled 20 minutes too solid food for a 20-month old child to digest? (Mrs. S. F. D.)

Answer—No, not if the child likes 'em that way. For any one, a hard-boiled egg is as easy, perhaps easier, to digest, than a soft-boiled egg, unless one prefers soft-boiled eggs. Raw eggs are more difficult to digest than cooked eggs. Part of the albumen or white of raw egg is indigestible; but cooking makes it more digestible. This is so, notwithstanding the old notion that there was something more "nourishing" or "tonic."

TREES AS MEMORIALS

One sponsor of the project is the Nebraska Federation of Women's Clubs, and one group of trees will be dedicated to the memory of Mrs. W. E. Page, the mother of John C. Page, commissioner of reclamation and one of the leaders in the struggle to reclaim the southwestern dust bowl. Mrs. Page was a former president of the Nebraska federation.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

The modern housewife realizes the value of raw vegetables and fruits in the family menu.

After having treatment at the Bircher-Benner Sanatorium in Zurich, where health is restored through proper diet, a leading New York cosmetician wrote a book on that diet so every woman could benefit from it.

In this book, "Food for Beauty," it is explained why raw vegetables and fruits are beautifying.

"A word about the rawness of the foods in this sunlight nutrition diet. Practically every layman believes that cooking increases the digestibility of food. That is not correct. On the contrary, in most cases, particularly where overcooking is present, the reverse is true.

"We forget that our gastric juices and the intestinal bacteria are fully capable of making food assimilable for human needs. It may take the system longer to prepare and digest these raw foods, but that in no way indicates that the rawness of foods is a disadvantage. Rawness in fruits and vegetables is, on the contrary, essential for tooth health, for keeping the jaws firm and strong, for awakening of atrophied taste perceptions, for strengthening of flabby stomach muscles—the bane of the woman who wants to keep her youthful figure—and for general health and toning of the intestinal tract.

"There are soft-food addicts who will insist that they have tried to eat raw fruits and vegetables but found them upsetting. The scientific men at the Bircher-Benner Sanatorium in Zurich showed me literally thousands of case histories of patients cured by their raw fruit and vegetable diet. Yet a large proportion of those men and women cured had insisted when they first arrived that their stomachs and intestines could not stand raw food!

"The diet consists of a generous variety of raw fruits and vegetables. Not just two or three, but as many as five or more vegetables and fruits should be combined in a single meal. The reason for this wide variety is well founded. Fruits and vegetables especially when served in their natural condition of ripeness, and without being subjected to the chemical destruction brought about by cooking, are concentrated sources of minerals and vitamins. But each type of vegetable or fruit has its own arrangement of vitamins and supply of minerals.

"Each single fruit or vegetable does not contain an equal amount of all the essentials. In many cases, certain vitamins are entirely absent, but others are present in marked quantities. Therefore, the variety prescribed purposefully provides more vitamin and minerals than the average individual body may need. But many bodies have special vitamin and mineral requirements. So in the safe margin offered, every individual no matter what her particular requirements, is certain to get the maximum for her own body needs when she includes a variety of raw fruits and vegetables in her diet."

This book is excellent for those of you seeking a sane, corrective diet. Not necessarily a slimming diet—but a health-giving diet.

"Treatment for Oily Scalp" is a leaflet in which foods for hair health are suggested. Enclose a three-addressed envelope bearing a self-addressed stamp if you send for it. Address me care of this paper.

'Razzing' Is Poor Method of Inspiring Child to Do Things

BY ANGELO PATRI

Jim is shy in the presence of his father, and strangers. He gets along well when it is mother he is dealing with, but is inclined to withdraw when she is not in sight. Father thinks this is about the last word in weakness and thinks that all Jim needs is "a good razzing" to toughen him to where "he can take it."

The toughening process does not seem to work well. At the table one evening, father asked Jim about taking part in a play soon to be given by the school in which Jim's teacher was taking the lead. "I suppose you volunteered with the rest, didn't you?"

Jim, sensing the criticism, colored and said nothing. "I knew you would. You're always so ready to do your share of the work and take what's coming to you. You're going to be a real man, if you live as long as that. I bet Pete's in it up to his ears. Isn't he? I say, isn't he?"

"Yes," said Jim barely moving his set lips.

"Of course. And with your able backing he will come through with flying colors. You're a shining example to your little brother. I'll tell the world you are."

Here Jim left the table. "That's right. Run away and hide. And don't forget to cry. Tears and sobs become a regular tough guy lye. I'd think you'd be so ashamed of yourself that you'd either do something to save yourself or go jump to the lake."

Luckily Jim heard only the beginning of this. He was shut in his room long before the ringing climax, so escaped its dangerous implications. Razzing children is perfectly useless, resulting as it does, in multiplying instead of decreasing their difficulties. Teachers, coaches and parents, who take this method of inspiring children to daring deeds, greater effort, more intensive drives toward power take the worst possible road. It ends in failure. Worse, it confuses the children so that they cannot think clearly or behave intelligently.

Courage never sprang from a starting spirit. It is the overflow of spiritual power and it is born of a spirit at peace with its world, one fed by praise, encouragement, example and practice. It is not born in children. Some have a better start by virtue of a healthy nervous system and a perfectly functioning body, but every child can be courageous.

Force, fear, and their allied characteristics kill the spirit. You can no more instill courage through the toughening process than you can warm yourself by putting out the fire. What is needed is confidence, assurance, and these come only by experiences that warm the spirit. Encouragement, praise for effort, sympathy and understanding for failures, will work the miracle by strengthening the spirit.

There is a difference between a strong personality and a bullying one. It has happened before that the shy child who was being "razzed" had a stronger spirit when put to the test than the razzor whose real quality was that of the bully.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamp, addressed envelope for reply.

Worst Bids Often Bring Best Plays

BY ELY CULBERTSON

It is lamentable, but true, that some of the worst contracts bring out the finest plays. In a sense, of course, this is logical. When a declarer is faced with virtually a hopeless proposition it is only natural that he should make extraordinary efforts to recoup in the play what was presumably lost in the bidding.

The declarer in the following hand had to be both good and lucky to bring home a top score on the board:

North, dealer. Match-point duplicate. Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH		WEST		EAST
♠ A Q 6		♠ 9 7		♠ J 10 5 4 3
♥ 10 5 5 3 2		♥ 9 4		♥ A Q 7
♦ A 7		♦ K 4 3		♦ J 9 6 5
♣ A 7		♣ 10 8 5 3 2		♣ 4 9

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

At almost every table in the room four hearts was the final contract, and properly so. The other South players did not ignore the empty spade suit and chose the correct second response of three hearts after North had rebid the suit. This particular South probably had an irresistible urge to play the hand himself, hence his two no trump bid.

With hearts and clubs bid by the opponents West had to choose between diamonds and spades and elected to open the nine of spades. Declarer must have been a bit perturbed when he saw the dummy. If the spade finesse were to lose he probably would be in bad shape. He considered the advisability of ducking the opening lead entirely in the hope that East would have to overtake, but considering the size of the card led, the nine spot, this was a virtually impossible. Declarer put in the spade queen. When it held he probably felt much better and then proceeded to go about the play in highly workmanlike fashion. He led a low heart from dummy and, when East ducked, put up the king. He then ran four club tricks despite the fact that East showed out on the second round. He discarded on heart and one spade from dummy and East let go three spades. Now declarer led a spade to dummy's blank ace, then returned a heart. East won and wisely elected the nine of diamonds as his return. (Incidentally East had not been too smart in holding on to all his diamonds and letting go his spades.) Declarer covered the diamond nine with the ten and West's king was captured by the ace. Declarer now slyly led the diamond seven and, as per his hope, East refused to take it. The seven spot holding. East again was thrown on lead with a heart, while South discarded his last club. Now East had to lead a diamond from the J-6 to declarer's Q-8 and, of course, declarer won the last two tricks. The five-odd in no trump made by South in this hand, which turned out to be a top score on the board, resulted from a combination of circumstances. First, there had to be considerable luck in the lay of cards with the spade king in front of the A-Q, and the heart well placed. Second, East's defense had to be faulty; and third, and perhaps most important, declarer had to take full advantage of the opportunities presented.

When you put a genista or Easter bloom out of doors cut the branches back somewhat. It should be taken into the house in the fall as it won't stand our cold winters.

Always use new rubber bands on preserve jars. It is well to test them by stretching about four inches. If they return to normal they are probably good. Jars should be thoroughly washed and inspected for cracks.

Croquettes often burst open because they are too large, too thin, poorly shaped or cooked in fat which is not hot enough.

When making jellies do not forget to use fruits and berries underripe rather than overripe, for better consistency and flavor.

Difference in Ages Lessens Chances for Marital Success

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—Dick and I are in love. He is a senior in college, not quite 22 years old, and I am a teacher of 26. He has been promised a job in a far away city at $100 a month and as soon as he finishes school he would like to take it and thinks that we could live on it. He has had enough of running round and would like to settle down to serious things and a home of his own. I hesitate, however, because of the difference in our ages and all that it might involve because of changing tastes. What do you think of our chances of happiness if we marry?

RUTH.

DOROTHY DIX

Five years' difference between the ages of a husband and wife does not matter much after a man is 30, but while he is still in his early twenties it is all-important. The reason for this is obvious. In the one case he is immature. He is still growing mentally. His tastes are changing. His ideals altering. The thing he likes one day he discards the next. The girl who fascinated him yesterday he can't see today.

He is incapable of picking out a wife to whom he will be faithful because he doesn't know what he is going to be himself and what he will want in a wife when he grows up.

Besides, he hasn't had his fling. And if a man doesn't have that when he is young, he is likely to take it when he is middle-aged, with disastrous results for all concerned. Whenever you hear of a man going haywire in his forties and deserting his wife for a gold-digger, ninety-nine times out of a hundred you will find out that he married before he had any play-time.

On the other hand, after a man is 30 he is mature. He is settled. He is what he is going to be and his habits and tastes are not going to change. He has had his fill of dancing and running about and is ready to settle down and be a fireside companion. If he picks out a woman five years older than himself for a wife, it is because she has the intelligence he desires in a companion and the experience of the world that makes her easy to get along with.

At 22 a boy is still a kid as you know well, being a teacher. Also, you know that his saying that he wants to settle down is nonsense and that he would be tired of having to stay at home of nights inside of a month. And you know that he is, in reality, ages older than he is, and that if you marry him it will be virtually a case of kidnapping for which the G-men should get you.

So don't do it, especially for your self, because there will be no happiness in it for you. You will no more stay in love with him than you will stay with a grown-up woman who has nothing to offer you in the way of a comfortable home or a secure living. You would find that working out a paper budget on which you can run a home is a very different matter from the way it works out in reality.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a girl of 16, going with a boy of 20. He is a nice boy and my mother does not object to him personally, but she wants us to stop seeing so much of each other and wants me to go about with his formal address, but I like him best after all, it is my life and I have to live it.

TERRY.

That's true, and that is why it is so important that you should plan your life so as to get the most out of it. When you are 16 you are sowing the seeds of the harvest that you have to reap, ten, fifteen, twenty, maybe forty years from now, and you want to be certain that you are planting flowers instead of tares and thistles.

Now about this "keeping company" with one boy business. Letting him take all your time and keeping away all the other dates, getting your name linked with his, getting to be known as John's or Sam's girl, having to wear some boy's brand. Let's consider it a little.

Of course, from your standpoint it seems simple enough. All the girls do it. In a way it is easy to go with one boy because you are familiar with him. You do the same things. You know the same people, so you don't have to make any effort to make conversation or keep him fascinated. He is as comfortable to have about as an old shoe.

But suppose Tom gets tired of you, or some new girl comes along who strikes his fancy, or he goes off to college, gets a job some where else. Where are you? Left flat. Because you have let him drive away all the other boys and you have no dates.

Suppose in your teens you get paired off with Tom and you go with him not only through high school, but also continue going with him afterward, just because you have become a habit with each other and everybody thinks of you as belonging to each other just as much as if you were married.

You may have got dead tired of each other. Your childish romance may have worn out long ago. But you can't break away because neither one of you have any one to go to. Finally you drift into a dull-as-dish-water marriage just because your community has expected you to marry so long you feel you have to do it.

If you were going to buy a new hat or dress, you wouldn't pop into the first store and buy the first thing you saw. You would shop around and look over all of the imports until you found something that you just felt you couldn't live without. Well, that is what a girl ought to do about picking out a husband. She should have just as many dates with as many different boys as she can manage, for in that way she can look 'em over contrast them and make sure to get what she wants.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST
By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

You can never gain platform poise and oratorical skill unless you undergo the universal initiation of stage fright and cold sweat. The best orators in history also went through this same initiation, so take courage and utilize all your public platform opportunities.

CASE N-134: Frances D., aged 18, gave a 10-minute talk preceding my address before a large young people's convention.

Her remarks were very interesting. She had her speech typewritten, but knew it so well she seldom had to refer to the pages lying on the table before her.

But she was very frightened when she first took the platform. Her face was pale beneath the also suffered from stage fright and stuttering. These men were introverted wallflowers who resolutely forced themselves to take over their social responsibilities.

William Jennings Bryan, a past master of oratory, confessed to me that he would even suffer from a mild return of stage fright if he were off the platform for a few months, as during vacation.

One of America's famous chautauqua lecturers and professor of public speaking in our School of Speech would be his formal address, that he would walk up and down the alley back stage, taking deep breaths and trying to become calm.

Misery Loves Company

Yesterday I received a letter from a fellow physician. He thanked me generously for similar remarks in a previous letter from me relative to stage fright.

"It certainly is helpful to know that everybody else is in the same boat," when attempting to give a speech," he commented.

"I had to deliver an address before the women's club of our town last week, and I never suffered so much agony in my life. I could hardly sleep on the night before I was scheduled to talk, and I was so exhausted following my thirty minutes on the platform that I called off my evening office hours, and went home to bed.

"I was so disgusted with myself and my cowardice that I resolved never to accept a speaking engagement again. But your remarks have given me a new perspective. I guess misery loves company. I don't feel quite so dejected, now that I realize everybody else goes through the same ordeal the first time."

Courage Is A Habit

This doctor wasn't a coward, however, for he forced himself to do what was expected of him. It isn't cowardly to be afraid when we are in a new or dangerous situation. On the contrary, it is really a sign of intelligence. Only those too dumb to appreciate the gravity of the situation escape being afraid.

The chief difference between the brave man and the coward is simply

The Home Gardener

By Edwin H. Perkins

Occasionally a toad will find its way into a garden where, unknown to the average gardener, it will perform a service which is hard to measure in dollars and cents. Contrary to a general belief a toad in spite of its ugliness, is the gardener's ally.

Cutworms and flying insects of the night are the ideal food for toads. Based on the consumption of cutworms alone, one authority estimated that one toad would consume, in a single season, more cutworms than could be killed with twenty dollars worth of poison. Once established in a garden, the toad makes no demands. He works during the plant growing season and hibernates somewhere out of reach of cold at the beginning of fall to return again when the bluebirds and robins make their appearance. Toads like to dig in under a large rock or they will find shady retreat under a board resting in some cool part of the garden.

House pets generally play havoc with the garden and should be kept out of it. Most gardeners do not own dogs but are bothered with the unleashed pets of others. Fortunately they can be kept away. Dogs detest the odor of nicotine and will not come near it. Spraying the lower branches of trees and shrubs as well as plants near entrance walks with a dilute solution of nicotine will have the desired effect. Nicotine sprays sold at seed stores for the control of aphids are effective and harmless to plants which are sprayed. One spraying will immunize plants for several weeks.

had no special liking, might seem to them surprising and possibly questionable. But any teachers she has always liked very much, and who would naturally be ones she would like you to meet, well, I am sure, be delighted to come. The fact that you do not know them personally does not affect the propriety of your writing a note to each one saying that before you leave school it would give you much pleasure to meet the teachers of whom she has been especially fond, and inviting her to take tea with Mary and you on Friday, at half past four.

Accidents Do Sometimes Happen
Dear Mrs. Post: Several years ago when I was married we received a coffee table from friends. They thought we were having modern furnishings and sent us a coffee table that is modern in design. As it turned out, we bought furniture that is all traditional. We are now moving and I would like at this time to dispose of the table if that could not be considered unkind to our friends who gave it to us. You see there is a complication in the fact that they come to our house all the time.

Answer: Couldn't you put the table to some other use? As a plant stand, for example. Or might not some one—a very touchy older relative, for example—give you a new coffee table to match your furniture? In this case, you would have to use the new one.

OLD HOME WEEK MURDER

The Characters

Win, the last Billings of Billingsgate.

Yesterday: Win is too old to have been the man who eluded Asey so vigorously. He says he is through with Old Home Week.

"And Win," Weston continued, "was going to get paid ten dollars for broadcasting on the radio. What do you think of that, Win? Ten dollars!"

"Got more'n that'n'm pocket right now," Win returned airily. "Got 'm'poll tax, an' 'enough to live six months on. Keep 'y' ten dollars." His tone indicated that ten dollars was so much pig feed.

Jeff laughed. "I admire his spunk. Let him off, Weston. Asey's right. Enough is enough. Don't you agree, Brinley?"

"No," Brinley said. "Not He's had more care and attention lately than he's had in years, and what thanks do we get for it all?"

"You put me up in front of that tin pan on a microphone," Win retorted to the microphone. "But greggapa used 'say, you can lead a horse to water, but ever he won't drink the stuff."

Asey and Jeff chuckled. "Consider," Jeff said, "that angle. Suppose Win decides to give some unexcused anecdotes over the air. That is very definitely something to think about."

"I'll tell 'em," Win promised. "But you," he wagged a long forefinger at Brinley, "you an' that girl I seen you, while 'y' wife was stuck up in the wheel. I seen the two of ye, out 'hind that tent! I seen what 'y' was up to. 'N' I'll tell."

There was fortunately a chair behind Brinley, and he collapsed into it. "It's a lie," he tried to speak out manfully, but his voice turned out to be a hoarse whisper. "It's a lie!"

"Lie nothin'," Win returned. "I seen you, makin' 'up to her. Seen it all. Gif the feller throws knives at Furcner. Eye-talian, or some-thin'."

"So that," Asey said, "was where you was, durin' the ferris wheel fun? Just frolickin', huh? J. Arthur, it's lucky for you ne told. We couldn't seem to get you placed, an' believe me when I say you was goin' sooner or later to be run through the mill until we did find out where you was."

"I'll resign," Brinley said. "I'll resign. Only—don't tell Bessie! Don't let Bessie know! Bessie wouldn't forgive me, ever! And it was just—just a—only—I mean—'Just what?'" might find your man. Perhaps you hit him, after all."

"You keep your men here," Asey said. "The casualties tonight is enough. So long."

Asey and the doctor found the entire household except Jeff camped in Kay Thayer's bedroom. "It wasn't Win, was it?" she asked. "Asey, did you—you didn't find anyone else, did you?"

"I found J. Arthur, but nothin' come of it. Kay, what happened? What was you doin' there? What went on?"

"This afternoon," she told. "I found the two paths you said me about, and then I found another one down to the ice house, and then it cut around the ice house and went off into the woods to a road. I guess it was the road where Brinley said he parked this afternoon."

"Why'n't you tell me?"

"Well, I didn't seem important at the time. And because you told me to take the shortest path, or way, and this was circuitous and roundabout. And this evening it suddenly came to me that perhaps it was the path the murderer used. After all, he'd hardly park on the main road, and he had to have a car somewhere. And it sort of fascinated me, the idea did, so I snooped away—"

"She told me," Sara interrupted accusingly. "That she had to see some reporter!"

"I did. And afterwards, I got into the percolator and drove up there—Asey, if you look like that at me, I shall cry. I swear I shall! I know how crazy it was, but I didn't think of it then."

"Go on."

"Well, I had a gun," Kay said. "I shot. I shot twice—you don't seem surprised?"

"The fellow had a silencer," Asey said. "but we heard two shots. You pretty much had to have a gun. B'sides, you said once you was a sucker for a shot. Go on."

"Well, I went there, and wait'd, and after a while I got bored, and scared, and cold—I'm a city person. I don't understand country noises, and I confess they terrify me. So I lighted a cigarette, and about two seconds later—"

"Somebody whizzed by you, an' you discovered what a bright girl you really was. Lightin' a cigarette then? Was—look, couldn't you—oh, go on."

"I fired back. I don't know why. I couldn't see anything to fire at. And then something whizzed and stung my head—I didn't know that being shot was like that. And I began to understand that the popping sound was a silencer. At that

Tomatoes Grow On Wired Vine

Mysterious Electrical System Believed Cause Of Huge Crop

Sacramento, Calif. —(AP)—Archibald Dickson can lean out the second story window of his home and pick tomatoes. He says the vine grows that tall and yields heavily because of a mysterious wiring system.

Dickson, using brass tacks, connects a common radio aerial to crochets of plants. And at each end of the vegetable bed he sinks a metal cylinder — he calls it an accumulator — he connects to the plants with wires.

No current is connected to the system, and Dickson says he has done no fertilizing or other forcing. He won't tell what's in the cylinders, apparently water tight, but says their purpose is purely electrical.

Just what, if anything, the plants get from the wires attached to them, Dickson says he doesn't know. "It could be something originating with radio broadcasts," he says, "but I don't think so. I think I've stumbled on something new."

For his first experiment he put two sets of tomato plants side by side in identical soil. Those grown normally rose to five feet and averaged 14 tomatoes a vine. Dickson says he plucked 60 tomatoes from the wired vines — which grew 11 feet tall.

Then he took two fig trees — part of a shipment he said a commercial nurseryman had discarded as dead. With his electrical gadgets attached, they're now flourishing in his yard.

The retired business college operator makes no claims except to state what he has done and point to results.

Four state and county agricultural experts have looked over his work. They declined to take a stand one way or another.

Great Falls, Mont. —(AP)—There are lots of trout fishermen in Great Falls and trout fishermen despise the lowly carp. But in Great Falls carp are welcome residents.

"Now there doesn't seem to be a trace of mosquito larvae on the swamps," says William Shea, sanitary commissioner.

Apostolate Should be Right Hand of Pastor, Director of Diocese Tells Appleton Unit

THE Apostolate should be the right hand of the pastor, because in his work he needs lay people to help him," the Rev. Henry C. Head, diocesan director of the Apostolate, Catholic relief and welfare agency, said in an address before Appleton Apostolate at its annual meeting last night at Columbia hall.

He said the Apostolate is one means of carrying out the plan of Catholic action as instigated by the late Holy Father, Pope Pius XI, and that it is the "Catholic lay people carrying on the spirit of the Kingdom of Christ upon earth."

Pointing out that the Apostolate's main objective is its spiritual work, Father Head said that the organization also gives supplementary aid and emergency relief. He spoke of the indispensable aid which lay people give through their contacts with situations and families and their friendships with people, and he told of cases which were brought to satisfactory conclusions through cooperation of the lay person and the skilled social worker. He extended to the members the apostolic blessing of the Rt. Rev. Paul P. Rhode, bishop of Green Bay, who was unable to be present, and thanked them for their support.

The Rev. E. M. Geimer of the Oshkosh Apostolate who assists Father Head, spoke briefly of the accomplishments of Appleton Apostolate, as did the Rev. Cyrian Abler, O.M. Cap., pastor of St. Joseph's church, and the Rev. Lambert Scanlan, assistant pastor of St. Mary church.

Teachers College Speakers Appear At High School

Discuss First Aid, Conservation, Telepathy And Boys Club

Four representatives from the speakers bureau of Milwaukee State Teachers college, Milwaukee, addressed various classes at the Appleton High school this morning. All of them spoke on subjects of current interest and conducted open forum discussions after talks.

Harold Schultz presented the problem of first aid to the combined physical education classes. Pointing out that accidents in the United States have increased in recent years, Schultz stressed the need for a more general knowledge of first aid measures.

"Conservation and Recreation in Northern Wisconsin" was the subject of Louis Ulrich's talk to the combined biology classes. Since people are beginning to realize that outdoor life is a necessary part of their existence, conservation activities in the state are being directed with the aim of meeting that demand, he said. The result is the creation of an outdoor recreation land and the launching of an unprecedented program of conservation that is propagating as well as conserving forests, fish and game.

"Telepathy and Clairvoyance: Fact or Fable?" was the question which Donald Brazier attempted to answer for the speech classes of Miss Ruth McKennan. In an effort to analyze the strange phenomena which happen to people all over the world, Brazier discussed the tests sponsored by the Scientific American and the discoveries at Duke university.

Wilson Kuenzie told "The Inside Story of Boys' Clubs" to the sociology class of Werner Witte and the non-college English classes of Miss Adela Klumb. It is the contention of Kuenzie that boys' clubs are an essential part of every community, serving not only as crime preventives but also as potential educational forces. Boys' clubs replace the gangs in underprivileged areas, idealizing the 'boy' who excels in boxing or baseball rather than the one who can "strip a car" more deftly than his companions.

The governor emphasized at a conference yesterday that he wanted fast action. He indicated he would provide funds for the project when definite plans are completed by a committee made up of members of the two commissions.

Assistance of county highway committees and other groups will be enlisted in the program.

Among tentative proposals were expansion of the roadside park system; erection of roadside benches and other picnic equipment; acquisition of timber lands along scenic roads; development of roadside planting program, and substitution of uniform and artistic guide boards for the hodge-podge of roadside signs in resort areas.

New Chain Store Tax Measures to Face Legislature

Present Law Expires July 1; Several Proposals Await Action

Madison—The legislature will have to act soon on the reenactment of the state chain store tax if the losses of revenue suffered in 1935 and 1937 are to be prevented, it was pointed out today.

The present chain store tax law, which became effective in October of 1937, will expire on July 1, unless the legislature acts to continue it or replace it with a new law during the next few weeks.

There has been no statement on the administration's policy on chain store taxation, but it has been unofficially said by administration leaders that a reenactment of all expiring state taxes will be necessary in order to balance the state's budget. In fact, the state budget can only be balanced, the administration has admitted, if all expiring taxes are renewed and new ones passed.

Another reason for the necessity for early action on the chain store tax question, according to the commission which administers it, is that a lapse in the continuity of the tax usually results in confusion and creates difficulties in collection.

There are now several chain store tax proposals awaiting action in the legislature, including a couple with heavier rates proposed than those now in effect.

One reason for the lack of enthusiasm among legislators for chain store tax—in contrast to the feeling several years back—is that this form of taxation has fallen far below the revenue that it was intended to produce.

During the last fiscal year the tax produced slightly less than $50,000. The present law is based on the number of retail outlets in a chain, and is graduated from $25 for each outlet over 1, and under $100 for each outlet in excess of 25. The entire receipts, however, go to the state treasury.

Main reason for the poor producing rate of the tax is the liberal exemption provisions. Exemptions include filling stations, all businesses licensed under peddlers' trucks, transient merchants, second-hand dealers and showmen's provisions, vending machines, lumber, coal and building material yards, ice houses, railroad dining cars, news, per and magazine stands, second-hand automobiles, milk and bakery warehouses, cheese factories and creameries, and cooperative associations.

mitttee the WPA's purchasing policies were robbing local building material dealers of their traditional business.

Eckley said, for illustration, that in one instance the government called for bids on 500,000 barrels of cement in Detroit and Flint, Mich., for use on projects at widely scattered points in the state.

Only two dealers submitted bids, Eckley said, and nine declined to bid.

"The WPA has taken over the functions that normally would be handled by the local dealers," he added.

The witness said his group made the "definite recommendation" that purchases for WPA projects be made through the local dealers. This would preserve the normal business functions and tend to sustain employment, he said.

The committee also planned to delve further into charges that federal relief money had been used in Tennessee to enhance the value of property owned by politically prominent persons.

That Louis Luecke, city electrician, was watching the meters yesterday when he saw a circuit go open as a result of a break. On his way to find the break he was stopped by a city truck driver who told him that a post carrying the conduits for a fire alarm and traffic lights was broken on S. Superior street. Luecke discovered later that it was the truck driver who was responsible for the break. The driver backed his truck into the pole while backing out of a service station driveway.

That Captain Charles Steidl tracing down clues this morning, clues as to the whereabouts of a bat seen in the county highway office in the courthouse. The captain of the county traffic squad called in all the resources gained in years of service in patrolling the highways as he dug around the old cupboard files with his flashlight in search of the black darting figure that had upset the routine of the office staff. He met with no results in an hour's search.

Speed Hearings on Insurance Slayings

Philadelphia—(AP)—With a speed that stunned prisoners and brought protests from one attorney, men and women charged with the east insurance murder plots to collect insurance were given brief hearings in small groups today and held without bail.

The first group of three included towering Cesare Valenti, 55, brought here from a New York prison and Morris Bolber, both arrested as leading conspirators, and David Brandt, Philadelphia typewriter salesman.

Assistant District Attorney Vincent McDevitt said both Bolber and Brandt are charged with conspiracy in the death of Raymond Mandiuk, a Philadelphia baker. His widow, Agnes Mandiuk, also is held in his death.

The arraignments came after a dramatic "mass meeting" that brought face to face for the first time virtually all of 24 prisoners charged with participating in the murder plots.

Missing Throne of China Is Recovered

New York—(AP)—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., was relieved today because the $2,000,000 former imperial throne of China had been found intact.

The throne was reported missing yesterday after representatives of a Fifth avenue gallery were unable to locate it at a customs warehouse. Mrs. Roosevelt is sponsoring its exhibition here for the benefit of Mrs. Chiang Kai Shek's war orphan fund.

Hours later workmen of the Holland-American line, after ripping open several crates, found it inside a box addressed to "Prof. Otto Munchen of Oakland, Calif." instead of the gallery.

Fish Temperamental So Motorboats are Banned

Bakersfield, Calif.—(AP)—Motorboats have been banned from Kern park lake for two weeks.

The board of supervisors decided the order to give the fish some peace and quiet when anglers complained the bass were too frightened to spawn.

Brain Specialists Put Mind in Reverse to Treat Mental Ills

BY STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH Associated Press Science Writer

Chicago—(AP)—Brain specialists can now turn the mental clock back to childhood to treat mental disease. The effect of the treatment, which is carried on under hypnosis, is to put the mind in reverse, re-orient it from the time it began going bad, and start it over again in normal channels.

Dr. Milton H. Erickson of Eloise, Mich., told the American Psychiatric association that proper hypnosis by a competent mental physician is highly useful in readjusting disordered minds.

With only suggestion and instruction a person can regain the mind of his childhood, and completely forget all the years of experience between his actual age and his "mind time." When his mental clock is thus turned back his thinking is actually that of a child.

Individuals Tested

In Dr. Erickson's experiments individuals were tested in reading, doing puzzles, and performing simple arithmetic problems.

"The results obtained both in general behavior and in test performance were appropriate to the age levels suggested to them," he declared, "and there was a distribution of correct and incorrect answers and of omitted questions appropriate to the various suggested age levels."

All of the mental efforts of these persons were "straightforward and serious" and when the age level of the suggestion was carried back far enough "there were frequent evidences of juvenile misunderstandings and approximations," he added.

The mental state of an individual under treatment is entirely different from amnesia—the forgetfulness of a person's own name or home—because while he reverts to childhood thinking and acting he retains a realization that the current year is something in the remote future to which he will return. Thus he can re-plan his mentality.

In another experiment Dr. Erickson reversed the healing process and carried a person who had recovered from insanity back to his mental status at the time he was most acutely ill.

Suspect Held in Probe Of Fire in Michigan

Atlanta, Mich.—(AP)—Investigation of a forest fire that burned more than 30,000 acres in three counties last weekend resulted today in the detention of a Presque Isle county resident for questioning.

Charles Eagle, district supervisor for the state conservation department, said the man denied knowledge of how the fire started.

Conservation officers said there was evidence the fire was incendiary. It broke out simultaneously in several places near the Canada Creek Ranch, a private hunting and fishing club south of Onaway. Conservation officers expressed the belief the motive might have been to destroy the ranch.

The fire was brought under control Monday. The club property suffered some damage.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE Milwaukee — (AP) — A warrant charging manslaughter was issued yesterday for Robert Dryburgh, 21, as the result of the death of Louis A. Schastner, 66, who was fatally injured April 23 when struck by an automobile.

inter represented a decided effort to get Russia into an alliance-making mood. And it seems to mean that the Anglo-French pair are prepared to go somewhat further than the soviet previously had understood.

Show Signs

Coincidentally—if it is merely coincidence—eastern European countries which have been holding aloof from the soviet are showing signs of warming up. These include Rumania and even Poland—both interested in protection against aggression.

At the same time we have a further important development which may have nothing to do with the pursuit of Russia, but which might influence the soviet attitude. This is the British decision to put the country on a semi-mobilization basis for the summer, on the grounds that "hostilities now are undertaken without notice." As Minister of War Horc-Belisha put it "the nation must sleep on its haversack."

The soviet government has been reported, without confirmation, to have doubts as to how far Britain really would go in protecting countries of eastern Europe from aggression. The suspicion has existed in some quarters, so it is reported, that England might not be very keen in embarking on a protective war.

Britain's announcement that it is calling up reserves for training and is sleeping on its haversack is calculated to impress both friends and others with the country's determination to see the thing through.

Russia in Driver's Seat as Diplomats Court Her Favor

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE New York—(AP)—Soviet Russia suddenly has emerged from the European crisis as the much sought-after lion of the party—apart from the object of flattering attention from both sides of the current controversy and able to pick and choose friends at will.

This may not be so much of a surprise to the Muscovites, who have been playing their diplomatic cards with what many professional observers call great skill, as it is to some continental peoples who have been wont to have the soviet held up to them as the bad lad of Europe and a person to be avoided at all costs.

Many elections have been won by the simple expedient of raising the bugbear of the "red menace" before the voters. And both Signor Mussolini and Herr Hitler, among others, covered much of their roads to power on well belabored anti-communistic steeds.

Many Developments

The rush for soviet favors would seem to be producing a flock of striking developments. The latest and most important is the renewed effort of Britain to bring Moscow into a military alliance.

This comes at a moment when there have been reports that Herr Hitler has been making amiable gestures towards Russia—despite his famous anti-communism pact.

Rapprochement between Moscow and Berlin is about the last thing the Anglo-French brotherhood want to see, and apparently they are considerably concerned over the possibility, however remote, of such a hook-up, or that Russia might retire to isolation and let the rest of Europe scrap it out.

British Premier Chamberlain yesterday brought the question of the projected alliance before the house of commons. The soviet official news agency, Tass, had termed the Anglo-French proposals as one-sided, and Mr. Chamberlain was explaining.

3,377 Deaths in State Reported for March

Madison—(AP)—Counties reported 3,377 deaths to the state board of health in March, making an increase of 614 over the six-year average for that month, the board said today.

F. E. Kester, department statistician, said it was the highest provisional death total for any month since January, 1937. He added, however, that many of the deaths occurred earlier than March, but were not reported promptly.

He said the state's high health rating was not likely to be impaired by the March record because almost all of the increase was accounted for in deaths of persons over 65 years of age. For the second consecutive month, he said, no death from diphtheria was reported.

Brews Will Meet New London Nine In League Clash

Kaws Hold Intensive Drills to Prepare for Second Game

Kaukauna—Off on the right foot as a result of Sunday's victory over the Menasha Falcons the Mellow Brews are holding intensive workouts this week in preparation for the New London game Sunday on foreign territory. New London also won its first game, defeating Little Chute, 11 to 10, on the Chute's grounds.

In administering a 7 to 4 beating to the Falcons, last year's champions, the Kaws showed they'll have a lot to say about this year's title. Eddie Schuler, who looms as Manager Joey Vil's most dependable hurler, gave out 13 hits against Menasha, but bore down to leave 13 visitors on the bases.

It appears as if the Kaws will have as powerful a team as any in the loop. Against the Falcons Kaukauna made 10 hits, but averaged more than a double each time, collecting 24 bases. Three home runs, five doubles and but two singles make up the total.

Hit Home Runs

Ordinarily a team's weakest hitters bat last in the lineup. Carl Schuler, Junior Martens and Eddie Schuler, hitting seventh, eighth and ninth, each confounded this axiom last week by smashing out a home run, among them sending all of Kaukauna's tallies across. Ves Kappell, in the leadoff spot, was the only Kaw without a hit, failing to connect in four trips.

Manager Vil showed the boys how it should be done, stepping up twice and getting a two bagger each time. Ralph Wurdinger in the cleanup spot got the first hit of the day and was robbed of an extra base clout when Nadoyni at shortstop went up high to spear his liner, the game's fielding gem.

About 500 fans witnessed the opener here last week, and with but one team in town good crowds are forecast for the summer. The Kaws will play at home on May 21, entertaining Green Bay, and next after that on May 28, against Manitowoc.

Plan Parade for Holy Name Rally

Line of March Maps are Sent to 40 Participating Parishes

Kaukauna—The line of march of the District No. 2 Holy Name rally in Kaukauna May 20 will proceed from Wisconsin avenue on the north side to LaFollette park on the south side, it was made known today by parade chairman, Archie Creviere and Ethan Brewster.

Maps of the line of march are being sent out this week to the 40 parishes of District No. 2 which will take part in the celebration.

"In planning the parade, we have made an effort to take the marchers through the main parts of the city and still to avoid any long hills that will be hard on the older men marching in the rally," the committee leaders said. "The march is not more than a mile long."

The first units in the parade will assemble on Black street and start the march by proceeding down Wisconsin avenue. Each of the side streets running into the line of march will hold Holy Name men from various parishes. Kaukauna will assemble on Kaukauna street,

During Month of April

Neenah — Miss Lydia Bourassa, staff supervisor, reported a total of 699 calls during April at the Wednesday morning meeting of the Twin City Visiting Nurse association at the Neenah-Menasha Y.W.C.A. The child health center conducted May 1 at Roosevelt school supervised previous attendance records with 73 children examined, 33 of whom never attended before.

The visiting nurse association has asked that all interested persons to dial WOP at 9:45 Thursday morning, May 18, for the community service broadcast which Miss Dorothy Deming, director of the National Organization of Public Health Nursing, will present. A tea for the nurses at the home of Mrs. G. W. Young, Jr., April 25, was reported. Auxiliary and board members attended with Mrs. Norbert Verbrink appearing as guest soloist.

Five Building Permits Issued

New Construction Approved at Neenah Is Estimated at $8,400

Neenah — Building permits totaling $8,400 for two homes and a garage, a chemical building and a foundation have been granted this week at the office of the city building inspector.

A permit was granted Otto Steffenhagen to erect a new home on Chestnut street at a cost of $4,000. The frame structure will be 24 by 28 feet and 13 stories high with an 8-inch concrete block basement. William Switchenberg will be the contractor.

Neenah Insurance Man Urged on Heil As State Commissioner

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — William Block of Neenah, an insurance company representative in that area, is a candidate for the position of state insurance commissioner. It was revealed here this week.

Block's candidacy was made known to members of the Republican administration in letters received during the last few days.

The Neenah man is the latest of a large field of candidates for the position, a field which includes at least three Appleton men.

Toll of Accidents Is Over Figure for 1938

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau

Oshkosh — Traffic accidents in Winnebago county continued to show a marked increase over last year's record.

Floyd L. Wright, county safety league official, reported 12 accidents, 8 injuries and 16 cars damaged in the first eight days of May. A year ago, there were but six accidents, three injuries and nine cars damaged.

16 Schools Enter 2 District Track Meets at Neenah

First Three Place Winners Eligible to Compete at Madison

Neenah — Sixteen schools in this area will enter track teams in the annual district Class B and C track meet to be held at Neenah High school's athletic field at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon, according to notice received today by Principal J. H. Holzman from P. F. Nevers, secretary of the W.I.A.A.

It will be the second as well as the largest district track meet to be held in Neenah, according to the principal.

The Class B schools are Neenah, Menasha, West De Pere, Kaukauna, Kimberly, Marinette, Chilton, Ripon and Berlin, while the Class C schools are Peshtigo, Gillet, Lena, Amberg, Crivitz and North Fond du Lac.

In the Class C meet, Peshtigo will be defending the championship which it won last year, while in the Class B meet, there will be no defense of the title, for Shawano, which won the championship last year, won't compete this season.

Coach Ole Jorgensen reported that the first three place winners in each event will qualify to compete in the state tournament at Madison May 20, but five places will be counted for team points in each event.

Hoover Library To Be Housed in $600,000 Tower

Information Would Play Vital Part if War Should Break Out

BY SAM JACKSON

Palo Alto, Calif. — Diamond drills have begun exploring for foundation to hold a lofty $600,000 tower which will house one of Uncle Sam's most unusual assets: the Hoover Library on War, Revolution and Peace.

It is a collection of books, pamphlets, posters, newspapers and original manuscripts gathered by Herbert Hoover during the World War and the tumultuous years that followed, and later presented to Stanford University.

In time of peace the library is a mecca for historians, who want to learn what went on behind the scenes in the great struggle.

Valuable To Propagandists

In war this arsenal of information might play a vital role in American strategy, particularly in the field of propaganda.

Among its contents are 26,000 posters and photographs showing how the military spirit was stimulated in every nation engaged in the World War—handbills spread by airplane over enemy country and pamphlets, books and press releases.

Scholars say its equal does not exist in any other country.

The library, today contains more than 5,000,000 separate items," says Prof. Ralph H. Lutz, in charge.

Do Not Open Until—

Some of the acquisitions are sealed, with the proviso that they remain unopened until some future date, presumably because their contents, if published, might have damaged living persons. The next of these "time-locked" cases will be opened in 1942 and may yield some startling secrets on European intrigue.

Hoover, who lives on the Stanford campus, is a director and continues to take a keen interest in building up the library.

The library staff likes to tell of an American scholar who planned a book on the war, went to England and found a photograph of the period of research in the library of the Imperial War Museum. When he made his plans back to the United States—and Stanford University.

Neenah Boat Racers Discuss Season Plans

Neenah — Preliminary plans for the summer racing season were made at a meeting of the Neenah Motor Boat club last night at the Heinz garage, W. Doty avenue.

The club has made application to sponsor several races this summer, and one invitation, the Kaukauna water festival in June, has been accepted.

FAR INTO THE NIGHT

Emporia, Kas. — Mary Huchens, who works for a newspaper, had a vivid lesson in the drawing power of newspaper advertising. Inadvertently, she wrote her telephone number instead of the advertiser's in an ad. All day and most of the night the Huchens telephone was ringing and Mary was deeper in the doghouse with each ring.

SEEK PAINTING BIDS

Memorials — Bids for the painting of the Memorial building are being sought by the Menasha park board. Specifications are on file at the Memorial building. Bids are returnable by May 20.

British Believe Rock of Gibraltar Is Invulnerable but They Take No Chances

Here's the Rock of Gibraltar as it would look from an enemy plane. The harbor is closed in times of emergency by booms swung between the ends of the moles, or seawalls.

New York — If the 17,000 civilians who live in the rocky buildings at the base of British Gibraltar are jittery, the world may well forgive them. For these folks know that batteries of Big Berthas, aimed at them right now, probably will start dropping tons of explosives around them within a few minutes, if a European war is declared.

They hear that German, Italian and Spanish guns are in place at Algeciras, seven miles across the bay. And they believe more guns are hidden in the Spanish Moroccan mountains 15 miles across the strait.

Invulnerable, Says Expert

Nearly in the Atlantic, the Nazi navy is holding target practice. And in the Mediterranean, Italian warships and submarines are maneuvering.

But British officials aren't worried. They recall that they've held Gibraltar for 300 years. And they believe that — with French help — they still can fight off all comers. A British naval expert sums it up thus:

"In my opinion, Gibraltar is invulnerable. It can return blow for blow, and it's very improbable that the jabbing shells and bombs into the harbor."

Gib is a three-mile-long, 1,400-foot-high, primary marble crag jutting into the gateway to the Mediterranean from the Spanish peninsula. The town of Gibraltar clings to the western seaboard, behind an excellent harbor.

The Dutch Helped

Unarmed British bobbies—in the same uniforms worn on Piccadilly—patrol the narrow streets. But the residents, who speak a jumbled Spanish, regard them as foreigners. Turbaned Moors, Spanish soldiers, Indians, Senegal negroes and American tourists rub elbows.

The British grabbed Gib—with Dutch help—from Spain in 1702, and have never been ousted. Their most formidable challenge came in 1779 when they withstood a harrowing siege by Spain that lasted four years. At that time they carved galleries into the side of the Rock.

Now the Rock is honeycombed with caves and galleries where powerful guns are in place. Recently, anti-aircraft guns were placed near the summit to cope with attacking bombers. On a level area near the Spanish border a landing field is being rushed to completion.

Every day guns on the Rock fire salvos that shake the town at targets in the straits. Residents open their windows just before firing time — to prevent the glass from shattering—then so unconcernedly about their business.

Puffs of Smoke

A tunnel that will shelter 1,200 persons is being pushed through the Rock. This, plus the numerous caves, will accommodate the whole population, if necessary. Every resident has a gas mask. And several months supply of food has been stored.

Anyone who has read Richard Halliburton's account, in "Revel Road to Romance," of his unhappy attempt to slip past guards and photograph fortifications, realizes the real precautions the British take. The only clues outsiders have in trying to locate the guns are the ately union shop contracts with coal operators outlying the Appalachian area. Upon receipt of this wire you are directed to propose to your operators an extension for two years of the old wage agreement which expired April 1, in all of its terms, schedules and conditions, with the addition of two new clauses as follows: "It is agreed that the United Mine Workers of America is recognized herein as the exclusive bargaining agency representing the employees of the parties of the first part. It is agreed that as a condition of employment of all employees shall be members of the United Mine Workers of America, except in those exempted classifications of employment as provided in this contract."

Must be Included

The foregoing two sentences must be included in every contract and should be placed in the enabling clause following the identification of the parties to the contract. When such contracts are signed by operators, districts will arrange for forwarding of operation of mines and washings of employment as provided in this contract.

All contracts will be tentative in status until examined, approved and signed by international officers, and their failure to so approve will invalidate contract.

Attack on Danzig Would Mean War, Chamberlain Says

of the present problems, that it would only make their solution more difficult and more ruinous.

The premier emphasized the partnership of Britain and France and paid tribute to British sacrifices in instituting military conscription.

The solidarity between France and Britain is closer and more confident than ever," he said. "It remains the basis of French policy and we will not let it be weakened by intrigue or by odious and lying propaganda."

France Roosevelt

"At a moment when by clear and voluntary effort the British people are breaking tradition to impose freely on themselves the discipline of obligatory military service, the French people renew their fraternal greetings."

Lebrun, addressing a joint session of the chamber and the senate, declared that "none must doubt France's unshakable resolve to back her rights with strength worthy of herself."

He reiterated France's "ardent and sincere wish for peace," declaring her loyalty to the principles stated in President Roosevelt's future still is uncertain.

Daladier gave a detailed explanation of the accords in which France is participating.

He cited the initiative taken March 20 when the French government let Rumania know she could expect immediate aid in defense of her independence.

Similarly, he continued, "we assured Greece of our immediate assistance in case that country were menaced with aggression."

Confab With Turkey

Daladier said France and Britain both had concluded reciprocal guarantees with Poland, which he called a "noble and courageous nation."

Negotiations, he added, are proceeding with Turkey to "maintain peace in the eastern Mediterranean where our interests are vital."

"We wish also to regulate with her (Turkey) a problem long in suspense between us."

This was taken as a reference to the sanjak (state) of Alexandretta, now under joint French and Turkish military rule.

The premier finally came to the Russian question, reaffirming that the 1935 mutual military assistance pact between France and the Soviet Union "still is in force."

"If some divergencies still exist on methods of that accord among Britain, France and Russia," he said, "the entente affirmed from the start of conversation, the basic necessity of safeguarding by common action the true interests of peace."

Daladier summed up: "Thus, for the first time in central Europe and the Near East there has been realized one of the conditions which we always considered indispensable to the maintenance of peace: A community of obligations of France and Britain."

Gabby Homers But Cubs Lose

Bees Snap Losing Streak
With 6-2 Win; Cuc-cinello Injured

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Bees snapped out of a five game losing streak with a 10 hit batting feast yesterday, and behind the three hit pitching of Lou Fette, whipped the Chicago Cubs, 6 to 2, in the series opener.

Fette walked seven and tossed a home run ball to Manager Gabby Hartnett in the second, but aside from these lapses he was magnificent in recording his fourth straight victory.

The Cubs failed to get a hit from the time Hartnett knocked his third homer of the year until Herman tried to open the eighth. They squeezed in their other run in the third on two walks and a wild throw by Lopez who tossed the ball into right field trying to nab one of the runners.

The Bees temporarily lost the services of Tony Cuccinello, their ace second baseman, who wrenched his knee when Dick Bartell ran into him at second during an attempted double play by the Bees in the fifth inning. X-rays will be taken tomorrow to determine how long Tony will be out.

CARDS TIE FOR LEAD
Philadelphia—ABR H The St. Louis Cardinals went into a National league tie for first place with the Cincinnati Reds yesterday by defeating the Phillies in the first of a two game series, 4 to 3.

It was a close pitchers' battle from the start with Lon Warneke besting Claude Passeau to win his third victory of the year, although Bowman came to his rescue in the ninth. Jimmy Brown and Joe Medwick led the Cards' attack with three hits each.

Poor base running by the Phillies dulled their chances against Warneke in the early innings.

TRouble at Home
New York—ABR H Maybe playing on home grounds helps a team, but in 43 of the 83 shutouts in the National league last season, the home team took the beating.

Today at 76 years, which makes him the country's oldest football coach in both age and point of service, Stagg is the same forceful personality, clean living ideal of the game.

He started coaching at Springfield in 1890. Two years later he transferred to the University of Chicago. He was there 41 years.

Compulsory retirement regulations nearly trapped him, but in his characteristic Stagg fashion, he told his well wishers to go to the noddie. He had been offered a coaching position at tiny College of the Pacific in Stockton, Calif., and on he went to greener fields. He's been there since 1933, going as strong as ever.

A broad statement that, but the honor will rest lightly and deservedly on the white head of Amos Alonzo Stagg.

Fifty years ago, a younger and sprier Stagg called out his first football squad at Springfield (Mass.) University. He was just out of college, a brilliant athlete who had made his mark on the gridiron and diamond at Yale.

Preakness Draws Greatest Field
Club's President Hopes He'll Receive Rather Than Give Trophy

Baltimore—AP—Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, young president of the Maryland Jockey club, sat in the clubhouse dining room at Pimlico, scooped up the last forkful of scrambled eggs and said: "This probably will be about the greatest Preakness ever run—and I'd rather get the cup than give it."

He was referring, of course, to the 49th running of the $50,000-added Preakness stakes here Saturday—a horse race that annually captures the fancy and frenzy of the thousands who follow the thorough-breds.

And what he meant by his remark was that he hoped his colt, Impound, would win the race and his historic trophy, the Woodlawn vase.

What Johnstown, William Woodward's Kentucky derby winner, will do against a field made up mostly of horses he didn't meet in the derby was one of the angles that makes this Preakness loom as a "great" race—one that will test Johnstown's right to the title "king of the three-year-olds."

Just now it looks as if there were only seven sure starters: Johnstown and his running mate, Challenge; Impound; Wheatley Stable's Gilded Knight; W. L. Brann's Challeon; Saratoga Stable's Volitant; and King Ranch's Clencia.

HE'S PURDUE GRID PROSPECT

When the Gold and the Black football teams of Purdue University clashed in their annual spring game last Saturday, an Appleton youth, Arnold Harmsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Harmsen, 720 N. Appleton street, was at tackle for the Gold. And when the contest was over the Gold had a 13 to 12 edge over the Blacks. Harmsen is a freshman at Purdue this year and gives indications of being a varsity regular when next fall rolls around. He weighs a bit more than 200 pounds and tells his family he found college ball a long step from Fox River Valley conference competition. Harmsen was an all-conference selection in his senior year at Appleton high.

Talbot Finds Mrs. Moody Is Greater Player Than Ever

THE STANDINGS
NEW YORK—AP—I just watched Mrs. Helen Wills Moody play two sets of smashing, no quarter tennis against one of the country's top professionals, Walter Senior, and strike me blind if she isn't a greater player right now than she ever was.

Helen is crowding 33 and she has dominated women's tennis for the better part of two decades. Yet Senior had to pull out all the stops to lick her 6-4, 7-5, and at the finish he was blowing like Tony Galento while Helen took one deep breath and was perfectly composed.

She is playing a hard match like that every day now, whipping herself into shape, no doubt, to defend her Wimbledon title. Helen isn't yet ready to announce she will play at Wimbledon, but you can count on it. She has just ordered a dozen new racquets, and the sort of practicing she's doing isn't for sheer pleasure.

The girl who was "little pooker" when she won her first national championship back in 1923 has grown into a maturely beautiful woman who smacks the ball a little harder each year, yet retains all her amazing accuracy.

"I've been watching her play since we were both a lot younger out on the coast and I never saw her hit that ball better than she did today," Senior panted.

"Alice Marble is the only one who will have a chance against her at Wimbledon," said an instructor. "But Alice will never beat her. They all go to pieces when they face Helen."

Mrs. Moody, who won her divorce from Frederick S. Moody in August, 1937, has given no indication she intends to try matrimony again. She still paints a good deal in her spare time and is writing a book.

Bobby Monnett May Quit Pro Football

Milwaukee out-hit the Blues, 15 to 11, but left 13 runners stranded on the bases. Despite the heavy hitting both starting pitchers went the route.

Long John Lindell of Kansas City yielded three extra-base hits, including a homer by Manager Mickey Heath of the Blues, his eleventh of the season. Vince DiMaggio and Phil Rizzuto also collected homers as the Blues reached Tex Carleton for six extra-base blows.

Johnny Sturm, Blues' first baseman, who got six for six Tuesday, ran his string of consecutive hits to eight before Carleton halted him. Kansas City made 19 assists for a season mark.

A four-run first inning helped Indianapolis to a 6 to 5 triumph over Toledo. It was the Indians' second in a row over the Mudhens, who fell one run short of a tie with a four run rally in the ninth.

The Indianapolis game was one of two tight tilts, Columbus going 11 innings to trim Louisville 4 to 2 in the other. The contest was a pitching duel between Andrews and Wagner until the 11th when Eddie Morgan homered for the Red Birds. They added one more run to clinch the decision for Andrews.

County Leaguers Open Play Sunday

By Gordon R. McIntyre

A few days ago we mentioned that we'd like to see the high school's new tennis courts kept open for use during the summer. And within a few days we learned high school authorities had found a reason or two for keeping them closed, or at least for arguing they should be kept closed.

It appears that someone had used the courts over a Sunday and that the players had not worn tennis shoes which prompted the complaint that the street shoes were rubbing the paint off the lines on the courts.

The other charge was that when someone knocked a ball over the fence surrounding the courts, he climbed the fence instead of going around after said ball.

One can always find fault if he looks for it and likewise find reasons to keep the courts closed if he wants them closed. In answer to the complaint about the use of street shoes instead of rubber soled shoes, one might ask whether at that time there was a notice posted on the courts informing players of the kinds of shoes to be worn.

As for the complaint about climbing the fence to retrieve balls, have you or you ever tried to put the toe of a size 6, 7 or 12 shoe into the openings on that fence and climb to the top? If the deed was committed by youngsters, what's to prevent them doing their monkey stunts at any time whether the courts be closed or not. It would seem the schools aren't doing such a hot job in teaching respect for property if the courts and fences are to fall victims of vandals.

Perhaps someone is interested in getting supervision if the courts are kept open this summer and that's no more than right. But we don't feel it is entirely necessary. If the courts are open, enough good tennis players will be using them to form some kind of a policing or supervising group.

We've seen courts in other cities used without a supervisor standing around and what about the courts in the Appleton city parks?

We took a run out to the municipal golf course yesterday afternoon to find John Turkow, the caretaker, dodging carpenters and painters which trying to collect a green fee here and there. The clubhouse is being painted and the interior improved with wallboard. All of which will add greatly to the building. John also said there would be bubblers installed on the course and Pete Fleming, the greenskeeper, got in a word or two about the greens being in excellent condition and the fairways in good shape except for a few low spots.

The Northern State Baseball league got away to a good start Sunday and we watched Seymour bow to Two Rivers in a game it should have won. Seymour couldn't produce in the pinch but four or five of its sluggers should get going soon. Afford the club looked tops and when it starts pounding the ball will be up in the race.

The win meant a lot more to Two Rivers than it might to Seymour. President Andy Fortin and Manager Stan Smogleske had had their troubles fusing a club together this year because several veterans refused to show with them. As a result they put a team on the field composed largely of kids just out of high school. Defensively they played great ball and if Andy and Stan can show some of them how to hit the Icebergers will be tough.

Coach Art Denney of Lawrence doesn't know whether it pays to have a sprinter who'll do the hundred in 9.7 seconds. Last Saturday when Art started to tell about the great race turned in by Joe Graf at Beloit the night before at the relays, he invariably ran into a flock of remarks about slow timers, poor watches and his veracity. Most of them were in fun, it is true, but nevertheless Art had to talk almost as fast as Joe ran.

Art's best answer to the comments was that it was the first time Joe ever bore down hard in the century; most of the time he wins his races as he pleases.

Incidentally, don't be surprised if Two Rivers has lights for its baseball field before many more weeks pass.

McNair Is Lost to White Sox for Week
Chicago—AP—The White Sox will have to get along without Eric McNair at second base for a week. That was the edict of the club physician yesterday after scanning X-ray pictures of McNair's right ankle, injured in Tuesday's game with the Yankees.

The pictures revealed some torn ligaments but no fractured bones. McNair was injured when Joseph Gallagher of the Yanks slid into second in an effort to break up a double play.

LITTLE CHUTE—Teams in the Outagamie County league are set for their league opening next Sunday, May 14, with Nichols invading Freedom, and Black Creek going to Shiocton for the northern encounters, and Appleton at Little Chute to battle the A. A. second team, and Greenville Grangers at Greenville Merchants in the southern division. Little Chute, Appleton and Freedom and Nichols are newcomers in the league.

Appleton is backed by the Cozy tavern and shows a formidable lineup which defeated Black Creek 7 to 1 last Sunday in a practice tilt. A slugger in the Appleton lineup who will have to be reckoned with is Chuck Sample, star griddle of Appleton High school, who clouted a homer the first time up. Tom Reider is expected to toe the mound with Mel Sleightweaver and Howie Van Ryzin in reserve and Gene Kloos on the receiving end. Reider fanend ten opponents in six innings last Sunday to earn the starting call at Little Chute.

Guerita Will Start
For the Chuters, Manager Vic Hartjes will start Tony "Dir" Guerita on the mound with Donny Fosters, a high school sophomore, in reserve. Fosters held Freedom scoreless for five innings last Sunday. "Daz" Van Thiel, who is starting his first season of baseball, will don the mask and mitt and looks like a corner. He is rangy, has a strong arm and enthusiasm. The rest of the lineup will have Don Peeters on the initial sack, Koss or Roger Koehn at second, Joey Vartega at third and Mel Van Asten, Frankie Koehn and George Weynberg roaming the outfield. Several reserves will see action before the end of the game, among them Dick Austin, Tom Lamers, Hartjes and Fosters.

Appleton will have Norm Slightweaver at first, Bud De Leest at second, Lavvie Bergner at the red light station, George Swamp at shortstop and Kirk, Sample and De Decker in the pasture.

Greenville Merchants are at home to their arch rivals, the Greenville Grangers, and are up one practice game on them. The Merchants are coached by Data Crowe, who usually

DIETED MOST OF HIS LIFE..FOUND FIRST RELIEF IN GLY-CAS

Mr. Bennett Now Able To Eat The Nourishing Foods He Wants Without Any Discomfort Afterwards; Back-Pains, Sluggishness Relieved Too; Durham Man Is Happy Over Gly-Cas' Action

Learn how Gly-Cas helps soothe your nerves, aids sound sleep, brings on a feeling of new vitality and energy, relieves so-called rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and other troubles which so often accompany faulty bowel elimination and poor digestion. Mr. Oscar Bennett, 319 Washington St., Durham, N. Carolina, a well known gentleman of that community recently made the following praising statement to the Gly-Cas Man who is now daily meeting the local public at the Volt's Drug Store, 134 East College Ave., this city:

MR. OSCAR BENNETT

"Ever since I was a boy I had been troubled with poor digestion until all enjoyment of eating was gone for me," said Mr. Bennett. "I was always careful of my diet for there were but few foods that would agree with me. I dieted carefully and did all I knew how to get relief from this condition, but only grew steadily worse. Gas would form in my stomach after my meals causing me to bloat until I could hardly breathe. I had awful pain after eating and then I developed an awful soreness and pain across the small of my back making it difficult for me to bend over. My sleep was disturbed continually and I felt as if I could get no rest at all. In this condition I had little energy to do my work and after it was with great effort that I did anything at all. In this condition I had little energy to do my work and often it was with great effort that I did anything at all. I felt sluggish, had no confidence in myself, nothing seemed to interest me and I was terribly discouraged. But as I learned of these Gly-Cas capsules and of what they had done for others I was soon convinced they were just what I had been wanting... and they were."

"If I had only had Gly-Cas long ago I would have been saved endless suffering," continued Mr. Bennett. "This modern remedy began its work by regulating my bowels and now with proper elimination I am feeling better in so many ways. I am now eating and enjoying nourishing foods with no distress or discomfort afterwards. Those aches and pains have been relieved, get around with ease, sleep good, get my rest and feel better generally than I have in years. With the return of my former pep and energy I am able to do a hard day's work, enjoying doing it and feel fine afterwards. Is it any wonder I am a Gly-Cas booster... it is one remedy which merits the praise given it."

The Gly-Cas Man is daily meeting the local public at the Volt's Drug Store, 134 East College Ave., this city, where he is introducing and explaining the action of this modern medical compound. Free samples given away.

Books for Young People are Added at New London Library

New London — Ten new books were added to the Young People's department of the New London Public library this week by Miss Grace Fleischauer, librarian, with career stories for high school girls heading the list.

"Adventure for a Song" by Alice Ross Colver tells of the adventures of a young American girl who spends her junior year as a happy undergraduate at Exeter college, England. It is an authentic account of college life in an English school with a fascinating international assemblage of students.

Two other career stories released are "Penny Marsh, Public Health Nurse" by Dorothy Deming, R. N., and "Peggy Covers the News" by Emma Bugbee. Both are lively up-to-the-minute career novels of young girls in two fields of work.

International intrigue, thrills in the Panama jungle and exciting experiences are contained in a new mystery for girls, "The Mystery of the Silver Chain" by Gladys Blake. It is the story of a 16-year-old American girl entrusted with the personal delivery of a secret formula to the chief of the Canal commission.

Adventure Story
For the boys there is a new story by Howard Pease, "Long Wharf—A Story of Young San Francisco." A colorful adventure story is founded on the curious history of the ship Nantle which was deserted in the San Francisco bay in 1850 when the crew jumped overboard to flee to gold diggings above Sutters Fort. The Junior Literary Guild selection, "Lief Erikson, the Lucky," by Frederic Kummer, is a stirring story of the son of an outlawed sailor of Iceland who upon return from exile goes forth in search of a new land to the west, Greenland.

Your new offerings for the children's room include the popular collection of drawings by Munroe Leaf, "The Watchbirds," a simple and instructive story of "Abraham Lincoln" by Allen Chaffee, the ever-appealing story of a pony; and "Mr. Popper's Penguins," an entertaining story of a penguin family by Richard and Florence Atwater.

Clean Hand Shelf
A "Clean Hand Shelf" maintained in the children's room is a collection of the newer books which are reserved for the use of school teachers and parents until released for general circulation. Among new ones on the shelf are "A Trip to the New York World's Fair with Betty and Bobby" by Grover Whalen; "About Customs" which describes unusual habits worn during the period from 1820 to 1872; and "Fun for Stay-in-Bed Days."

100,000 Jobs Going Begging In U. S., Kiwanis Club Told

Chilton—At the regular meeting of the Chilton Kiwanis club at the Hotel Chilton Tuesday evening the guest speaker was George Pfeil, representative of the Science Research association of Chicago. The speaker, who has degrees from the University of Wisconsin, the University of California and Northwestern university in the general field of social sciences, spoke on vocational guidance.

There are not less than 100,000 unemployed at the present time, there are 100,000 jobs begging for persons to take these jobs, he said. These 100,000 jobs are a result of new developments and require specially trained persons.

Boys being graduated from high schools this year have one out of two chances to get a job, while girls in the same classes have two out of five. The country over, research studies show, too many young men and young women are preparing for white collar jobs, the speaker said, adding that white collar jobs are on the decrease, through more efficient organization of clerical and secretarial activities, in the industrial set-up while the number preparing for these jobs is yearly growing larger. Too frequently, young people assume that the white collar job is better paid than are the jobs in which physical labor is the dominant factor of the work. Outside of the executive in the office, the workers in the production departments are much better paid.

In one high school the speaker found that 80 per cent of the students were taking a commercial course installed last year, in the face of the fact that there is a growing decrease in the demand for persons having such commercial training.

In commemoration of music week, a musical program was presented by students of the high school, directed by Miss Loretta Guelig, teacher of music in the public schools and Marvin Hoffmann, director of the school band.

Jerome Fox, former member of the assembly and later director of the H. O. L. C. at Milwaukee, was initiated as a member of the Kiwanis club Tuesday evening.

The following men left Wednesday for the Lake of the Woods region in Minnesota on a week's fishing trip: Louis Erbe and Bruno Arpa, New Holstein; A. Kaempfer, Manitowish; Charles Krug, H. F. Arpa, Edward Bonk and Dr. E. T. Rathert, Chilton. This is the second trip to this region by these men.

The following Chilton men attended a bowling contest Tuesday evening at Fond du Lac: R. C. Tesch, H. F. Arpa, Louis Stark, Carl Hofmeister, James Clow, Donald Bonk, Roy Eide, Leo Flattery, A. P. Baumann and Anthony Madler.

G. J. Huhman of Janesville, state agent for the Huntington Laboratories, Huntington, Ind., visited this city Tuesday on his annual visit to the school systems of the city.

Mrs. John Francis, who submitted to an operation for the removal of a goiter at St. Agnes hospital in Fond du Lac Saturday, is making a very satisfactory recovery and will return home in a few days.

The Rev. E. L. Hennig and Louis Holst attended the annual meeting of the Sheboygan Classis of the Reformed church at Potter on Monday and Tuesday, and on Wednesday and Thursday they attended the first sessions of the North Wisconsin Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed church at Neenah.

Darboy Church Picnic To be Discussed at Meeting Next Tuesday
Darboy — A meeting to further plans for the picnic to be held June 11 on the Holy Angel's church grounds is set for next Tuesday evening at Hupfaut's hall. The Christian Mothers society is sponsoring the picnic this year in order to raise money to pay their pledge, which they have given to the building fund for the new school building. It is hoped to start building next year. The picnic this year will offer the patrons a band concert by the Sherwood Wide-a-Wake 4-H Club band, a chicken dinner to be served by the Christian Mothers society and other features which will be discussed at the meeting Tuesday evening.

After the meeting Tuesday evening a social time will be enjoyed. A lunch will be served, and a special feature which the pastor of the congregation, the Rev. E. J. Schmit, has secured for the side show at the picnic, will be presented to the members at this meeting.

At the 8 o'clock mass on Sunday, Mother's day, 11 little children will make their first holy communion. They include: Jerome Uitenbroek, Ethel Otte, Gordon Luniak, Robert Mader, Patricia Thompson, Harold Emmons, Ronald Van Groll, Helen Burr, Merlin Koss, Theresa Otte and Diana Koss.

Mr. and Mrs. George Schwalbach, Sr., accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Renn of Kaukauna will leave Wednesday on a western tour. They will visit Yellowstone National park, the Golden Gate exposition at San Francisco, and relatives at Oregon and Denver and return in about two months.

Mary Lou Hupfaut entertained a number of friends at her home Sunday afternoon in honor of her eighth birthday anniversary. Games were played and a 5 o'clock supper was served. Guests included Eileen and Lillian Sprangers, Mary Kathryn and Leona Dietzen, and Patricia and Avila Thompson.

Mrs. Joseph Wittmann and infant daughter returned to their home from St. Elizabeth's hospital Sunday.

Miss Mildred Uitenbroek is a patient at St. Elizabeth hospital where she is recuperating from an operation for the removal of her appendix.

THEY'RE MORE DELICIOUS—the first bite tells you that! No pains are spared to make Premiums the very finest cracker of its kind—and when you strive that hard for perfection you usually achieve it. The best ingredients, the most careful baking—these things are bound to make a cracker better!

TRY PREMIUMS and SEE—how much zest they bring to soups, salads, cheese, spreads. Order some for the week-end from your dealer.

SUGGESTION OF THE WEEK!
Serve these appetizers if you want to make guests' eyes pop! Blend grated American cheese with butter to a smooth paste. Add dash of Worcestershire Sauce. Spread on Premium Crackers, top with bit of bacon, heat under slow broiler 'til bacon is crisp.

FWD Head Talks To Rotary Club At Clintonville

Olen Describes Public Relations Program of Truck Industry

Clintonville — Walter A. Olen, president and general manager of the Four Wheel Drive Auto company, talked to the Rotarians Monday on what he termed a new policy in the form of a public relations program by his company. Clintonville's major industry guests at the meeting of the club were members of the Wisconsin sales division of the FWD company.

Mr. Olen pointed out four distinct factors that must be considered in the successful management of a large industry, such as the local truck firm. These are: first, the stockholders who furnished the money for the organization and may expect a fair return on their investment; second, the employee whose services are necessary for the uninterrupted operation of the factory; third, the customer who must be given every attention in a highly competitive market; and fourth, the good will of the community in which the company operates.

The speaker showed how all of these factors had been successfully carried out by the local concern. He explained also that 75 per cent of the cost of manufacturing trucks today is beyond the control of the management of the company because this portion of the cost involves certain fixed charges. The remaining 25 per cent of the manufacturing cost may be reduced by efficient operation and wise management.

The FWD executive also reviewed briefly the financial condition of the firm over the 29 years of its operation. He said that during this period $1,250,000 in stock dividends and $2,206,800 in cash dividends have been paid to its stockholders.

Increase Wages

Mr. Olen explained how the Clintonville plant has met the demands of labor for increased wages, thereby avoiding a strike which would have shut down the factory and interrupted production.

Several years ago the company spent $250,000 for the installation of new machinery to facilitate production and its completing arrangements whereby new truck parts will be manufactured in the local factory thereby giving work to more local men.

The same talk was given by Mr. Olen to the Lions club at its meeting last week.

The May meeting of the Gateway chapter of the National Aeronautic association will be held at the club rooms at Hotel Marston Thursday evening, May 11. The junior group, or the model airplane club, will exhibit and demonstrate planes to be entered in the Junior Model meet to be held at the Clintonville Municipal airport on May 28. Entries for this event have been received from 14 different cities and villages in northern Wisconsin. William Shivelier is the leader of the Gateway Model Airplane club, under the sponsorship of Gateway Chapter N. A. A.

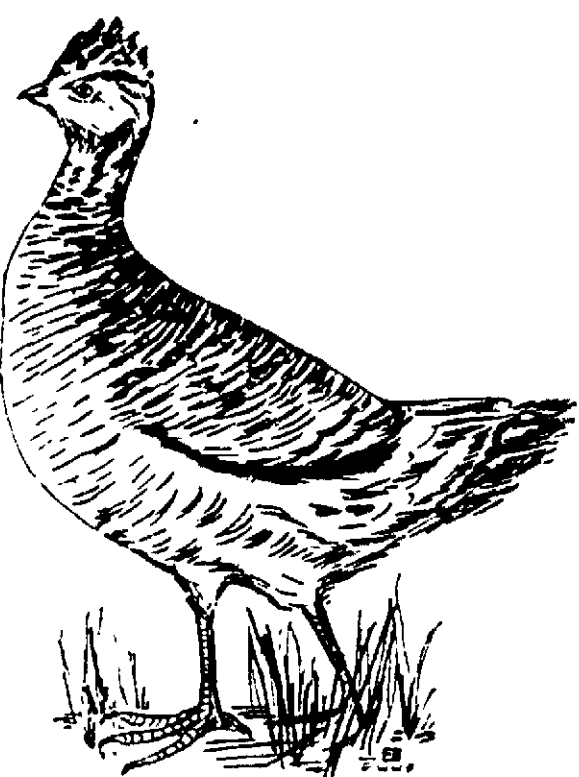

Miss Lulu Freeborn of this city underwent an operation Wednesday morning at St. Elizabeth hospital, Appleton.

Hold Initiation

Initiation ceremonies were conducted at a regular meeting of the Order of Eastern Star Tuesday evening. It was announced that Mrs. Lottie Dearborn, worthy grand matron of the Wisconsin Grand Chapter O. E. S., will visit the local chapter on June 13 for the purpose of inspection. Following the meeting, a luncheon was served to about 50 members by a committee composed of Mesdames Rebecca Lendved, J. E. Long, Joseph Leaver, John MacDonald, A. L. Merrill, Edward J. Meyer, Roy Martin and Richard Milbauer.

The S. O. E. club will be entertained at the Masonic temple Friday afternoon, May 12, by Mrs. W. L. Gould and Mrs. E. J. Perkins. Eighteen members of the local Rebekah chapter went to Shawano Tuesday evening to attend a district convention which was conducted by Mrs. Alice Fairweather of Sheboygan, a state officer. The

GREATER PRAIRIE CHICKEN

This is one of a series of 28 brief articles describing birds common to Wisconsin. It is suggested that readers clip these articles and illustrations for a scrapbook.

The Greater Prairie Chicken is well known for its "booming" or "booming" and characteristic dance occurs during the mating season. This is one of the birds that did not live in Wisconsin before the coming of the white man but moved into the state from the east and south as settlers opened up the land and planted crops.

The Greater Prairie Chicken is also known as the Pinnated Grouse. As it advanced into the state the Sharp-tailed Grouse retreated. The change in landscape was favorable for the visiting bird and unfavorable for the other that liked the old forest conditions.

There has been a great decrease in the number of Greater Prairie Chickens since the early days of settlement. Irrespective of shooting, this bird is one of a number that undergoes periodic depletions in spite of all protection. It is generally distributed over the state as a permanent resident, breeding throughout the prairie and open woodlands and in extensive clearings.

In general this bird breeds throughout its entire range, west central Alberta, southwestern Saskatchewan, and southern Manitoba to eastern Colorado, Arkansas, Missouri, southern Illinois, western Indiana and northwestern Ohio. It may retreat from the northern part of its range in winter.

The Greater Prairie Chicken is heavily barred above and below with white and brown, tail dark, comparatively short and rounded. The male has long tufts of stiff feathers on sides of the neck. It is generally a darker appearing bird than the Sharp-tailed Grouse.

Its food is 14 per cent animal matter, beetles, ants, grasshoppers, locusts, chinch bugs, cutworms, army worms, etc. The 86 per cent of vegetable food includes seed, smartweed, ragweed, grasses, grain from stubble fields, acorns, corn, berries, etc.

The nest is built on the ground, frequently on bush lowlands or adjacent uplands, also among thick grass on the prairie or between cultivated fields.

American Indian Lore

BY PHEBE JEWELL NICHOLS
(Mrs. A. F. Lookaround)

The last to be studied of the four essentials of the Indian's ethos is his understanding of his relationship to the earth.

The appellation, Grandmother Earth, is meaningful. The very words, grandmother, mother and grandfather, are replete with the reverence and honor which Indians bestow upon old age not because of the number and weight of years but because of the cumulation of the high qualities of wisdom, justice, and spirituality. The word, grandmother, also epitomized all that is protective, maternal, and fruitful.

The Indian considered that he dwelt upon the earth at the beneficence of the Great Spirit, that the earth cradled him like a mother, nourished him, and received his body in the end. It is not strange that, holding this concept, the Indian could not comprehend thoroughly the white man's idea of land ownership. We read so often of white men buying land from Indians. It is well established now that in these cases Indians capitulated only superficially to the white man's idea, that they made a politic gesture, with the mental reservation that anyone ought to know that that which is not owned cannot well be sold. At best, these land sales, to the Indian way of thinking, meant that he shared his territory claim to land usage and did not relinquish it. That he found himself mistaken is part of the deep tragedy with which he is contending even in this day.

The Indian revered the earth. He made his home fit into the landscape as completely as possible. Like the Navajo hogan of willows and sand in the sandy reaches dotted with willow thickets, and the Hopi stone house on the rock mesa, the Algonquian bark or mat covered wigwam in the woodland seemed a part of its environment. Its owner did not re-arrange or improve that environment. As far as it was within his ability to do so, he had selected his surroundings to suit his needs and always with an eye to beauty, and he was a genius in further adapting himself to his environmental demands.

While in their handicraft and homecraft Indians spared themselves no labor in the achievement of decoration, as the dyed grass designs in their floor mats and the porcupine quill embroidery on their buckskins testify, still their esteem for nature forbade their attempting to apply any decorative effect upon it. Perhaps the same protective instinct which animals possess moved the Indian to dwell as a part of the landscape instead of conspicuously against it. At the same time his respect for the earth did not permit him to tamper with it. Willa Cather with her great gift of sympathetic delineation describes this Indian quality in this way in her "Death Comes for the Archbishop": "—it was the Indians' way to pass through a country without disturbing anything; to pass and leave no trace, like fish through water or birds through air—Indians going to and fro on the long winding trails across the plains or up into the Sandia Mountains—all had the same quiet way of moving, whether their pace was swift or slow, and the same unobtrusive demerit; an Indian wrapped in his bright blanket, seated upon his mule or walking beside it, moving through the pale new-budding sage brush, winding among the sand waves, as if it were his business to pass unseen and unheard through a country awakening with spring.—North of Laguna two Zuni runners sped by—going somewhere east on 'Indian business'. They saluted by gestures with the open palm, but did not stop. They coursed over the land with the fleetness of young antelope, their bodies disappearing and reappearing among the sand dunes, like shadows that eagles in their strong unhurried flight."

Strength From Earth

To lie upon the earth, to walk upon it sent health-giving strength into him, the Indian believed. The foods that came from the earth were special maternal nourishment for him, also "good medicine", and as such were to be valued. Wastefulness of these blessings meant famine as an unavoidable punishment. The deeply religious Indian gathering roots had his ritual for use at that time. As he dug he would place tobacco in the cavity and repeat a song which was an expression of both request and gratitude. If he were gathering plants above ground, he would refer in his ritual to "The hairs of your head, Grandmother Earth", as he scattered the sacred tobacco.

The real Indian of today seems to have in his soul a deep love of nature which stems from this old concept of the earth as broodingly maternal. He is not noisy nor boastful in his appreciation of it, and along with his realization of its opulence he feels its beauty. This beauty is as necessary to the Indian's soul as the earth's bounty to his physical well-being. Water lilies in a pool, of the beautiful, but here again he is scrupulously considerate and does not gather any great bouquets. He may take two or three blossoms, thinking of the people who will enjoy the loveliness of those flowers he has left growing. Whether it be a crimson and silver cranberry marsh, a hillside purple with blueberries, or a forest swept with the scarlet and gold of autumn, the real Indian sees it with joy, with gratitude, and with a lifting of spirit, because "he has an indwelling remembrance of the ancient teachings and his spirit recalls the light of ceremonial fires, the sacred drums beating their messages up to the Great Mystery like the beating heart of all mankind while older rituals rise with the smoke of the votive tobacco."

dians own their mill at Keshena and who operates it?

Answer: On the Menominee Indian Reservation there are two towns, Keshena, seven miles from Shawano on Highway 47-55, agency town and here the office of the superintendent of Keshena Indian Agency. There are no mills nor any industry of any kind in Keshena, but the Franciscan Mission, schools and hospital are located here. Thirteen miles north from Keshena on Highway 47 is the town of Neopit, built after the Act of 1906 which created the Menominee Indian Mills. Neopit is the mill town. The Menominee Indian Mills, an industry which includes the saw mill and woods operations such as logging and conservation of forests, are run by a manager appointed by the Secretary of the Interior and paid from the Menominee tribal funds. In spite of the Menominees' long continued efforts to gain control of the operation of their own industry, the federal government still operates it with the Menominees' money and not to their satisfaction.

WILL REMODEL PORCH

Cheesemakers Who Try to Give Good Measure in Clear

No Wisconsin maker of limburger cheese need fear prosecution on the weight of the package if he is honestly trying to give full measure, according to Ralph E. Ammon, director of the state department of agriculture and markets, who returned recently from a conference at Washington.

Ammon's conference followed upon the heels of the New York regulation which requires the packages to be so marked that the net weight of the cheese can be determined. Heretofore limburger has been sold gross weight. The dispute over this question has been waging nearly a year.

Representing the limburger makers of Wisconsin, Ammon explained that it was a practical impossibility to fill every package with exactly 16 ounces of cheese, in case of pound packages, and that many packages might run overweight while others would be slightly underweight.

W. G. Campbell, as a government official, gave Ammon assurance that cheesemakers who were trying to give honest weight would not be prosecuted. He also stated that before any prosecutions were made in Wisconsin the cases would be submitted to the state department of agriculture and markets for investigation.

Virginia Bruce's wrist-length white ermine coat focuses attention on widened-shoulder sleeves of horizontal lines contrasting with the vertical manipulation of the jacket. Miss Bruce wears a wrap over a white chiffon formal, draped along Grecian lines with girle studded in semi-precious stones.

Capacity Crowd at Junior Promenade at Kimberly School Gym

Kimberly — A capacity house attended the prom at the high school gym Wednesday evening which was given by the junior class. At least two hundred couples crowded the dance floor and about a hundred more by actual ticket sale, watched from the balcony. The line of couples for the grand march was extremely large.

The hall was decorated as a Dutch scene, representing a night in Holland. Reigning as king and queen of the grand march were Anthony Van Stralen, junior class president, and Miss Betty Clark.

Holy Name choir will go to Kaukauna Friday evening to assist at rehearsal for Holy Name Sunday, May 21, when the district Holy Name rally will be held in that city.

William Verhagen Post No. 60 of the American Legion will hold its monthly meeting at 7 o'clock next Tuesday evening at the clubhouse.

Reports by the committee on the carnival will be announced and preparations made for the Memorial day program. After the business session, refreshments will be served.

The American Legion auxiliary held its regular meeting Monday evening at the clubhouse. Routine business and correspondence on the prevention and treatment of cancer was read. The group will hold poppy day sale on May 27.

William Van Daelwyk has the distinction of being a member of the Holy Name church choir for 32 years. He was one of the charter members when the first mass was sung on New Year's day, 1907. Services were then held in the old bowling alleys, now the present clubhouse site.

Victor Visene was then director of the choir. Only two present members of the choir were members at its beginning. Otto Mauthe rejoined the choir several months ago after a ten years' absence. William Maas is now director of the choir and Miss Ceile Bos, organist.

Mr. Visene is now a member of St. John's choir at Little Chute, since he made his residence in that vicinity some years ago.

WALKING

There are many two-legged animals in the world. I am thinking chiefly of birds. Each bird has a pair of wings and a pair of legs. Although the ostrich has wings, it cannot fly. Like the rhea, and a few other kinds of birds, it never rises in the air, but it can walk, and is a fast runner. It also knows how to give a powerful kick.

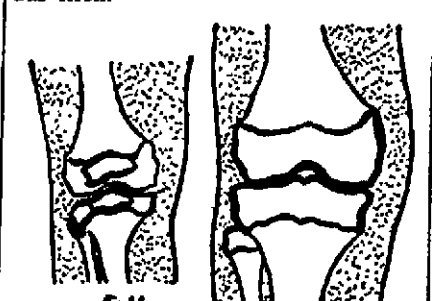

Diagram of knee-joint of two-year-old boy at left, and of 15-year-old boy at right. Black areas show cartilage around zones.

Other kinds of birds can fly and also can walk on two legs. Little song birds, like the robin, go over the ground, looking for worms. Some small birds do more hopping than walking, but many can walk and run.

Among the furry animals, the kangaroo is one which can move on two legs. It can make great bounds, and is kept in balance largely by its tail.

A gorilla has no tail to balance it, but can stand on two legs when it wants to do so. The gorilla, however, usually bends over while walking, and puts one hand or the other to the ground. It has extremely long arms.

Men, the kings of the earth, are the ones who best know the art of walking on two legs. Babies crawl on "all fours," but at the age of about a year the little one learns to rise on his feet and walk.

The leg, as a child has it, has three bones in it. This is the same number as we have in the arm, between shoulder and wrist. Two of the bones are in the lower leg. One is thin, and is known as the "splint bone." The other, the "shin bone," is heavy and strong.

In the middle of the leg is the knee, one of the very important joints of the body. We use muscles to bend the knee. If we couldn't bend it, what an awkward way of walking we should have!

In a baby there is a great deal of cartilage about the knee. This tough, but rubber-like, tissue later turns into bone. Study has proved that each year a child loses he has less cartilage about his joints. He still has a fair amount about his knees at the age of 10, and there is a little left after he reaches his teens. At the age of 25, a man has lost the cartilage in his knees, and has bone in its place. Full-grown people, however, have cartilage in some places — for example, in the place between the nostrils.

Dozen of muscles help us move the legs. The muscles are made to work by orders sent down by the brain through nerves.

Here we have one of the few pictures of Spencer Tracy and his young daughter Susan, who is one of her Daddy's most ardent fans. Tracy is taking a vacation trip in Paris and London.

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood — Settling Around (Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer): There's something revolutionary going on in this studio — something that should command the interest of every intelligent fan. At long last, a producer is making a determined effort to find out what you and I really want on our screen bills of fare.

Fidler, young, enthusiastic and very skeptical of Hollywood's time-honored taboos, is in charge of the bulk of Metro's short subjects. He's the "man behind the gun" on the Carey Wilson "Minutemen," the John Nesbit "Passing Parades" and the "Crime Does Not Pay" series. Old-line producers who told him, when he took command of the department, that the public would reject this, and be offended by that, were answered with a disconcerting "How do you know when we've never tried it?" Let's find out! He analyzed America's most widely-read periodicals, argued that the public would appreciate seeing on the screen the same subject matter about which it likes to read, and put his theories to practical proof by producing the most unorthodox, information-packed pictures in Hollywood history—pictures like "That Mothers Mav Live" (the story of Dr. Semmelweis, pioneer foe of child-bed fever and "Nostradamus," the story of a sixteenth century prophet).

When he wanted to screen the story of Father Damien, the leper priest of Molokai, he was warned that audiences would pronounce it revolting. "Let's find out," said Chertok—and produced a smash hit. It's been the same challenge on 50 per cent of his productions—and the public has yet to turn thumbs down on any interesting, vital subject. Success after success—but even more important than success is the fact that someone in Hollywood has stepped out of the rut of tried-and-proven material and undertaken a bit of intelligent experimentation. That is a step toward the best in pictures.

That is a step toward the best in pictures.

Stopped in on the "Lady of the Tropics" set and found them shooting the screen marriage of Robert Taylor and Hedy Lamarr. Hedy was as serene as a mid-summer afternoon. Bob as jittery as a popo stick. Again and again the director made them go through the scene and with each take, the Taylor nervousness seemed to grow. "Okay, that's it," came the directorial mandate at last. Well, print it — and, Bob, that's as good a portrayal of the nervous groom as the screen will ever see! With a muttered "thanks," Bob dashed for his dressing room. "He's fifteen minutes late for his radio rehearsal," Director Jack Conway whispered to me, "but, say, we sure put that nervous strain over, didn't we?"

Watched an interesting bit of camera magic on the "Stranger Than Desire" set — a technical trick that illustrates perfectly the amazing scope of the screen as a story-telling medium. Virginia Bruce shoots Lee Bowman and the audience solves the clue of her identity by seeing a huge close-up of her reflection in his eye-ball. Here's how it was done. Virginia, standing in front of Lee, was maneuvered about until the necessary angle was achieved. Then a camera, equipped with a four-inch telephoto lens and operated over

Clintonville Council Votes To Pay $1,575 in Back Salary To Reinstated Police Chief

Clintonville — At an adjourned meeting of the city council Tuesday evening, it was voted by the aldermen to pay the judgment in favor of J. J. Monty against the city of Clintonville for $1,575 back salary and attorney's fees amounting to $842.81. Mr. Monty recently was reinstated by the council as chief of police after a state supreme court decision upholding the findings of the circuit court that he could not be discharged without proper cause. The case has been under litigation for the last year.

The council also voted to enter into a stipulation with the plaintiff, Mrs. Sylvia Kesting, and her attorney in her case against the city of Clintonville setting forth that Ordinance No. 45 creating a police pension fund was in effect on May 7, 1938, the date of the death of Leo Kesting, former traffic officer in this city. This action was taken upon the advice of City Attorney C. C. Mullarkey who has been studying the case. Mrs. Kesting is asking $38.33 per month pension following the death of her husband, although city officials had previously maintained that the police pension fund had been legally abolished. Due to certain legal technicalities, Mr. Mullarkey found that Ordinance No. 45 had not been abolished in accordance with the law. The case is being heard in circuit court at Waupaca this week.

Lloyd Bauer, local airplane pilot and flying instructor, was appointed superintendent of the Clintonville Municipal airport. He will be paid a salary of $85 per month by the city until such time as his appointment is certified under the WPA.

Approve Power Contract

The aldermen approved the contract for the sale of electric energy to the Four Wheel Drive Auto company by the city Water and Electric department. The energy had previously been purchased directly from the Wisconsin Power and Light company. Under the new arrangement the truck company will be able to purchase its power at a lower cost and at the same time the city will make a profit from the transaction.

Alderman Henry Schellien, chairman of the poor committee, reported on the progress of the new relief setup in Clintonville. He stated that all families expecting city aid must re-register under the new ordinance adopted at the last regular meeting. By Tuesday, only 21 families had re-registered. Others who failed to comply with certain requirements in the new ruling, are not receiving help from the city. Since the more stringent rules have been adopted, a number of relief workers have secured other employment.

Barney Ashauer was appointed dog catcher for the city of Clintonville. Because of the numerous complaints about dogs running loose since May 1, when they were ordered to be kept tied, the city ordinance will be enforced. Dogs caught by Ashauer will be placed in the former bear cage in Central park and owners will have to pay a charge of $1 to the city treasurer and 50 cents to the dog catcher before their dog will be released.
